A PICTURE IS WORTH 2002 WORDS

Let's face it. It's not anything new. We all do it. What could I be talking about? Taking pictures is something we all do for one reason or another, but we don't always stop and think about how important and amazing it is to take pictures. We are able to "freeze time". We can capture important, life changing events that we will want to remember for the rest of our lives.

Being able to take pictures can help in telling stories about past events, and provides us with a visual that brings the story to life. When we were little we all loved reading books with lot of pictures in them; some of us still do. They help us to understand the story better. This way we don't have to guess what people or other objects look like.

High school is definitely an important part in our lives that we will want to remember, but 30 years from now it will be difficult to remember everything without pictures. Pictures really are worth 2002 words.

-Valarie Perreault

Aspiring to be an architectural drafter, Daniel Demers, learns the skills he will need to fulfill his dream. Pictures play an important role in the CAD program

Lending a helping hand. Mr. Moritko, helps Eddie Martinez and Steven Vecchiarelli with their art project. Pictures are used in all different ways in school, for example, art, photography, and journalism.

Working hard on her drawings, Amanda Turgeon, is deep in thought. Drawing pictures is only part of the cad program. It is not as easy as she makes it look.

Dedication-Mrs. Cecilia Costello

Taking a break after school, Mrs. Costello waters her plants. Mrs. Costello is a big fan of plants. You would know this if you've ever been in her class because they are all over her room.

Dedicated, hardworking, and compassionate are all words that describe Mrs. Cecilia Costello. Even if you have never had her as a teacher you know that she is an extraordinary person. When you pass her in the halls it is hard not to notice her big smiles and friendly hellos. Teachers like Mrs. Costello do not come along often. She really cares about her students, and we will all be sad to see her leave.

Mrs. Costello has been a valuable member of Comp's English department for over thirty years. She has touched the lives of countless numbers of students in only the most positive ways -- by showing her concern for them as individuals, by creating a welcoming classroom environment, and preparing them to meet the challenges of other English classes at the high-school level and beyond. Her concern for her students extends into her extracurricular involvements. She has been a class advisor, and she has advised the National Honor Society. Showing their appreciation for her efforts in the classroom as well as outside it, the students in the Class of 1991 dedicated Memini to her that year. She and her husband have been actively involved in the Chicopee St. Patrick's Day Parade Committee. For their commitment and contributions to the City of Chicopee's participation in this organization that runs the Colleen Contest and awards scholarships to various Colleen contestants, Mrs. Costello and her husband received the Woods award in 2000.

"Her retirement from teaching at Chicopee Comp will leave a void that will be difficult to fill. We will all miss her sense of humor and her quiet dedication. We hope she'll visit us frequently. We wish her the best of health and happiness as she leaves teaching for what we hope will be as rewarding a retirement as was her career in the classroom." commented Mrs. Judith S. Chelte, Chicopee Comprehensive High School English department supervisor, on how she feels about Mrs. Costello retiring.

Mrs. Costello first started teaching at Kirby Middle School for sixth grade students. She taught business for a little while, but her career has been mainly in English. She has won favorite teacher here at Comp nine times, six of them being consecutive. When asked about Mrs. Costello, Mr. Schuerfeld said, "She is an awesome lady." We all know that is the truth. Mrs. Costello is married with three sons and one grandchild.

As you can see from all of her contributions to the city of Chicopee Mrs. Costello is an amazing person. We are lucky to have had her as a part of our school. She is definitely an unique individual.

-Valarie Perreault

-Chrissy Sheehan

Doing what she does best, Mrs. Costello teaches her English class about the fundamentals of our language. She has done a great job teaching students over the years not just about English, but also about life. Literature can be inspiring and helpful to us in our every day lives.

At a wax museum, Mrs. Costello seems to be very happy standing next to the handsome Harrison Ford. Too bad he is just wax or every woman in America would be jealous.

Standing next to William Shakespeare at a wax museum, Mrs. Costello looks intensely at the amazing detail of the great playwright. She displays a look of admiration for the famous writer.

On vacation, Mrs. Costello takes a break from her walk on the beach. Although she hardly ever misses school, she looks like she is enjoying herself.

In Memory of All That Was Lost The Tragedy of September 11, 2001

On September 11, 2001, the United States underwent a terrorist attack. On that Tuesday morning shortly before nine a.m. American Airlines Flight 11, carrying 81 passengers and 11 crew members, crashed into the north tower of the World Trade Center in Manhattan, New York. About 15 minutes later, United Airlines Flight 175 from Boston to Los Angeles, carrying 56 passengers and nine crew members, crashed into the south tower of the World Trade Center. Eventually, both towers collapsed showering the city with thick dust and debris of falling burning buildings.

About a half hour later, after the second crash at the World Trade Center, American Flight 77, carrying 58 passengers and six crew members, took off from DC's Dulles Airport on its way to Los Angeles, California. Instead of reaching its destination it crashed into the north side of the Pentagon. Less than an hour later another hijacked plane, United Flight 93, carrying 38 passengers and seven crew members, en route from Newark, New Jersey, to San Francisco crashed near Shanksville, Pennsylvania. The terrorist intended to crash into the Capitol Building in Washington, D.C.

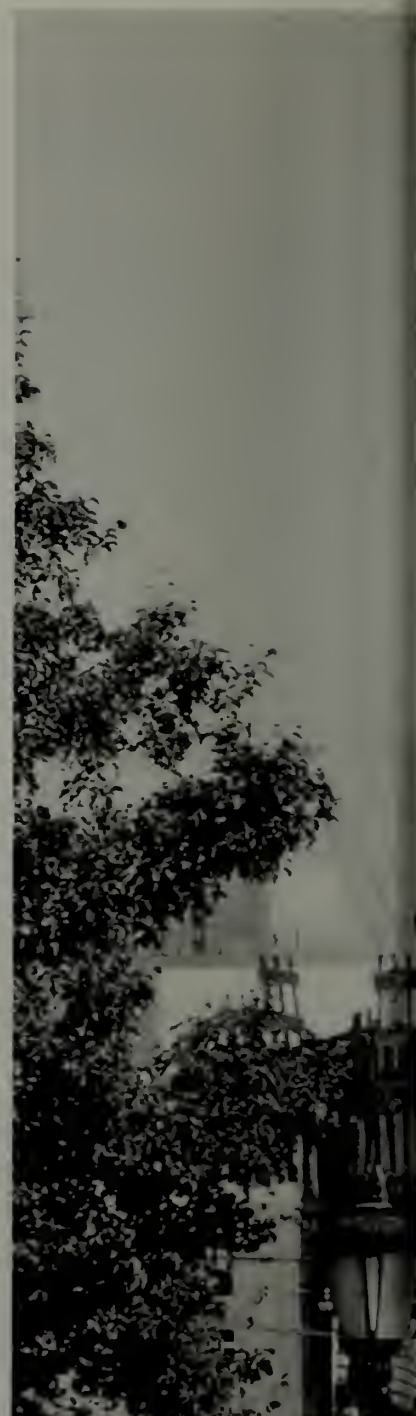

In response to the terrorist attacks, George W. Bush declared war on terrorism. The United States struck Afghanistan on October 8, 2001, and destroyed military bases and camps. Osama bin Laden was not located during the attacks.

Thousands of lives were lost and millions of lives have changed. Many workers from the World Trade Center are still missing. Many city workers, fire fighters, and police officers were killed or wounded trying to rescue lives from the many places that were attacked. In doing so, many of them have been emotionally changed and their families as well, have been greatly affected. The families of the ones who lost their lives on that day of September 11, will especially never forget this tragic event.

Since the attacks on the United States, many Americans have been affected either by the fear of what is next to come, or because they have lost family, friends, and loved ones. Although the United States has gone through so much, it has greatly united American citizens in many ways and brought out their patriotism. It has also caused an uncertainty to our economy. This tragic event, September 11, 2001, will always stay in our hearts and minds forever.

During the National Anthem at the traditional sword game that was held on September 15, 2001, the football players, and cheerleaders of both teams, Comp and Chicopee High, joined hands and raised flags to show their respects to what was lost and to honor our country. The unity brought the team together and helped them win the game. "Holding those flags pregame, and playing with the flag stickers on our helmets, gave us just one more reason to beat the Pacers," said Jay Nally.

The remains of the tragedy of September 11, 2001 is not much more than a pile of debris. Seeing this site brings tears to your eyes, to just think about the lives that were lost and how many bodies still haven't been recovered. It is unfortunate that this had to happen, but the tragedy brought us all, the country, closer together. (Photo courtesy of Mr. Walter Stachura)

In New York City, in front of the Trinity Church, a memorial was established. Many people brought various items, such as flowers, flags, candles, and banners to show their respects. "Along a fence was a mountain of teddy bears, some for and from children, these hurt the most. It broke my heart to see all the memorials but this also showed the nation's support. Seeing the destruction with my own eyes - it is still incredible," said guidance counselor Laurel Stachura. (Photo courtesy of Mr. Walter Stachura)

Gathering at Chicopee City Hall many city firefighters paid their respects to fellow firefighters' lives that were lost on that dreadful Tuesday. They had American flags, showing their respects to our country, and candles to honor what was lost. Their generosity was greatly appreciated by all. (Photo courtesy of Ms. Gina Potorski)

Class History

Making friends, and losing some as well, is something we have all experienced here at Chicopee Comp. If we are lucky we will find one or two good friends that we can share our experiences with that we have had here. So much has happened since we came in to the building Freshmen year. We started off small, scared, and unknown. Sophomore year was a relief for most of us, just because we weren't Freshmen anymore. We felt more involved in the school and got used to the crowded second floor intersection. Instead of being pushed around, we had enough courage to break through the crowd without the fear of getting trampled on. Junior year, up to that point, was probably the most fun. We were finally considered upperclassmen. Excitement arose in all of us because we knew that in just one more year we would be the top dogs in the building. That time has come. We now are more mature (well most of us anyway) and are making plans for the future. Getting good grades is a big deal for everyone now, instead of just a select few. We all want to graduate with the class we have been with for the past 4 years. We will all be moving on after this year and hopefully some of us can stay in touch. I am sure I can speak for my whole class when I say "WE FINALLY MADE IT TO SENIOR YEAR!"

-Valarie Perreault

Flashing Back

Walking through the doors of Comp for the first time for freshman orientation, everyone was nervous going through all the long hallways that were filled with lockers and looked like they were never going to end. Thinking, how are we ever going to find our classes? All this and more going through our little heads. Soon the first day of school came. Seeing all the freshmen standing in the middle of the intersection trying to find which way to go, being told the pool is on the fifth floor. Soon we came through all that. We noticed that the school wasn't that bad or that confusing. We remember entering the gym wearing pink for our first rally and praying that the seniors wouldn't throw anything at us. Then came the sword game, and wearing anything blue and gold that you owned. Nice job Colts, we tied! The freshmen class became stronger and we were now ready for sophomore year. At the end of our freshman year, Mr. Pinciak, our principal, retired. He had been part of the Comp faculty for many years. Our new principal became Mr. Kozikowski. Also that year Mr. Pete left his position in the science department and became our new vice principal. We asked a few people what they remember the most out of freshmen year. Mike Jarmuzewski stated he remembered standing in the halls and always being lost, until he got used to the school. Valarie Perreault remembered meeting new people.

Images of the Past

Sophomore year, a tough one. Right after getting attention as a freshman but far from the freedom of being a senior, we had to make many mature decisions and many times the wrong ones were made but this was the year to learn from everything.

Our class came together that year. Megan Grenier was on the homecoming court and we won the sword from Chicopee High for the first time in ten years. We ordered our class rings and elected Jen Kuc as president, Krystal Bujnicki as vice president, Cheryl Celatka as secretary, and Chris Rodriguez as treasurer. We got to know our teachers better and Mr. Brown and Miss Potorski became our wonderful class advisors. As sophomores we went to the Cotillion at the Log Cabin. One night a bunch of us sophomores got together at a former classmate, Cara Bator's house, and made shirts for the next day's rally. The next day we wore red for the Spirit Rally where we won the limbo thanks to Devan Daviau. Our advisors started telling us about our class dues and we were eager to finally be "upperclassmen." Sophomore year was filled with many memories and we looked forward to the years to come. Even though some members of are class are not graduating with us, all the memories we made together we remain with us for our lives.

A PICTURE WORTH LOOKING INTO THE PAST

Junior year was a year that every member of the class of 2002 will remember forever. This year was very eventful from spirit week to the Junior Prom. Even though we lost the sword, the sword game was also a big event junior year. Many memories were made that will leave a lasting impression on all of the members of the class of 2002.

Starting the year off as upperclassmen, the juniors were starting to await graduation. Paying our class dues was the worse part of junior year but we did it because we were starting to look forward to senior week. We also had to deal with preparing for the SAT's and hopefully getting an idea on what we wanted to do after high school. Spirit week was a blast. We all wore our class color, yellow, on color day during spirit week. We put up a good fight during the rally, but of course the seniors always win.

By the end of junior year almost everyone got their licenses. The parking lot was getting full but we were all happy to have our own wheels. The Junior Prom was very exciting. We got to get all dressed up in our dresses and our tuxes as we headed off to the Sheraton. The hallways got emptier in June when the seniors graduated but we were obviously excited. The juniors stepped right up and took the intersection over and finally realized that we are on our way, but have thousands of pictures to look back on.

Junior year was the start of the new millennium and ended with the excitement of becoming seniors.

"I loved hanging out in the halls with my baby Josh Ulen," commented Tracy Guyette on how she really feels about Josh Ulen. Tracy and Josh have known each other and have been friends since freshman year.

2002, Better

Pictures of the Past

We started off by coming in as freshman, not knowing what to do or where to go. As sophomores we had to go through the agonizing MCAS which fortunately, for us, didn't count. Getting our licenses junior year and going to our junior prom were especially memorable. Now, by senior year, you were telling the new freshman about the "pool on the roof". All that's left now is to wait for your name to be called at the graduation ceremony to receive your high school diploma. When you look back on this yearbook during your college years, remember, all the pictures you have from high school are worth 2002 words.

Moments Worth Remembering

Student life is one of the most important activities in our high school years and has a big impact on everyone around us, from our peers to our teachers and families. It's more than just what goes on in the classrooms too. A student's life is friends, boyfriends or girlfriends, and parties and concerts. It's school sporting events like the sword game where our football team plays Chicopee High. Or the soccer and basketball games we all love to watch. These events are what make our four years at Comp enjoyable and memorable. Times we will never forget, which are pictured in the following pages.

-Larissa Perreault

-Alissa Kozikowski

Getting together for a group shot Alisha Moralez, Alyssa Spano, Katelyn Fitzgerald, Lynette Casa, Megan Gazda, and Janessa Pare celebrate Katelyn's birthday.

Showing off their tongues while chilling in Cape Cod are Allisa Kozikowski and Steph Godbout. Visiting the Cape is something that they do every summer.

Students showed their support for their country after the attacks on September 11th.

What The Word Love Means...

From freshmen year to senior year, these two haven't changed much at all. Davey Deslauriers and Liz Koziol show their love.

You know you're in love when...

You can say anything to the person and you know they won't laugh at you. You can see their face when you close your eyes. You can still feel their arms around you holding you tight long after they are gone. You can still taste their kiss after you have said good-bye.

You can tell you're in love when you miss them before they're even gone, when their voice lingers in your ears, when their presence eases any pain, when their name sends chills down your spine, and when they are the only thing you can think about.

You can tell you're in love when you can see their hopes, dreams, and soul when you look in their eyes and when they call you at four in the morning and say "I love you" and mean it. You can tell when your tears stain not only their shirt but their heart, when they are hurt when you are, and when even a simple chore done with them can become a lasting memory.

Ultimately, you know you're in love when you can't imagine living without them, and can't figure, how you lived before you knew them. You know it when they fulfill every need, and without them you are incomplete. The love of someone else completes the heart, the soul, and the mind all at once.

Relying on each other since October 3, 2000, Dan McCarey and Tiffany Gendron smile year to year. Perhaps they have many years to come.

Happier than ever, Adam Feit and Emily Bennett cuddle together. Ever since Valentine's day 2001, they have been a perfect match.

Everlasting love has kept these two together. Paul Prokop and Natasha Santos have been together since January 1, 2000.

Some people have a hard time maintaining a relationship. Not so for Jon Bingle and Ally Dauphinais, they have been together since October 10, 1999.

As cute as can be-- Dan Demers and Valarie Perrault are happily paired. It's been all smiles since August 28, 2000.

Aww aren't they adorable! Tom Dumont and Jen Hanrahan hold each other tightly. They haven't let go since July 19, 2000.

Just like in the movies-- captain of the football team, Jay Nally and varsity cheerleader Megan Gazda have been perfectly matched since December 11, 2000.

Our newest senior couple Nick Torvel and Ashleigh Barrows are just as happy as the other couples. Their relationship has been growing everyday since August 9th 2001.

During first lunch, seniors Ashleigh Barrows and Rachel Pluta share a couple of fries and talk.

Freshman Samantha Bach tells us that "she doesn't like to eat lunch in the school cafeteria."

A group of friends share some good times together during the short breaks that they have in between classes.

Sophomore Melissa Mozeleski says she likes to talk with friends in the morning.

Lunchtime is always enjoyable when you can spend it with friends. These students enjoy their meals and a few laughs during their 4th period lunch break.

It All Happens In A Snap...

A Break from the Rush

Every day, students come to Chicopee Comp to learn. Forty-five minutes in seven challenging classes every day can be very demanding. We all know that students need some breaks in between their classes, so we went out to talk to them and see just what it is that they do. Every morning students are seen talking with friends in the halls, hanging outside, or doing last minute homework before their classes begin. Junior Thomas Scott tells us that he likes to hang out with friends near his first period class. For lunch, students claim that their favorite cafeteria food is the cooks' infamous "chicken fries." Nicole Thomas, who is a senior this year says "I like pretzels with cheese, too." Sometimes it's hard to catch a break. Students are rushed in just a few minutes from class to class. Many students from our school have told us that usually in between their classes, they run to their locker, say "Hi" to a few friends, then rush through the crowded halls in an attempt to get to their next period class.

Most students have told us that they use their lockers three or more times a day.

As they prepare for an upcoming test, Mr Czaparowski talks to his first period students. As they took notes, and studied hard, Czap's students enjoyed the joke or two that he threw in.

Senior Valarie Perreault says her favorite teacher is Mr. Brown because "he is laid back and funny."

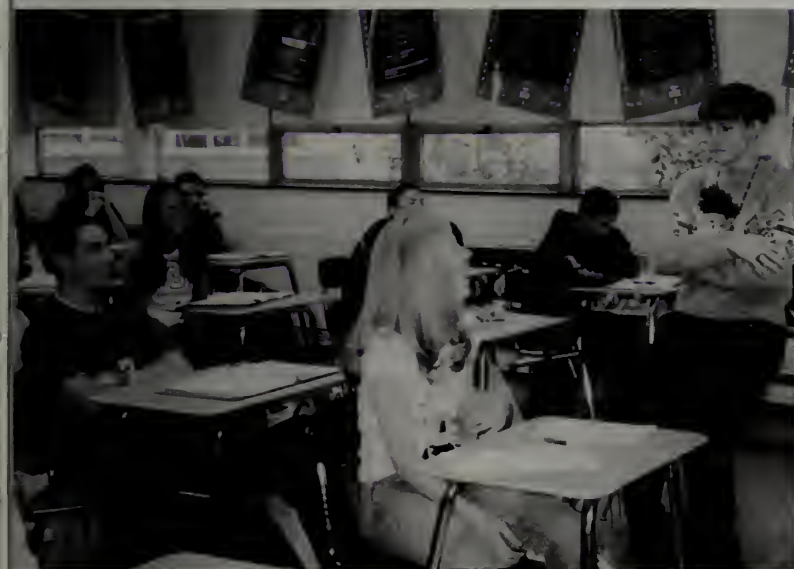

In the middle of second lunch, senior Valarie Perreault, cleans up her messy beau, Dan Demers, after he clumsily spills something on his shirt.

Standing together for a picture, not only as the student council officers, but also as friends, Jocelyn Wildman, Rachel St. Laurent, Shannon Sears, and Jess Kaeding share a few smiles.

During forth lunch, Mr. Jendrysik talks and jokes, as sophmores Monique Malvezzi and Laura Paul laugh and listen to him.

English teacher, Ms. Potorski, teaches her first period freshman class. Christina Sullivan laughs at Ms. Potorski being her sometimes goofy self.

While on a short break, a group of guys joke around with one another on the second floor during lunch.

Many students sit in Cafeteria B, and enjoy their lunches, friends, and a break away from classes.

A Game Worth Going To!

The most important game of the year, the sword game, always draws a crowd. Students, teachers, parents, and even the people of Chicopee all gather to fill the bleachers. On September 15, 2001 the Comp Colts fans cheered their team on tremendously, creating an atmosphere of enthusiasm. The excitement of the sword game made the team stronger leading to a thrilling win.

Scoring for the colts were Ben Adams, Vitaly Dzheinzherukha, Darryl Brown, and Billy Stewart. Some of the highlights of the game included the following. The first touchdown was scored by Comp on fourth and seven, Brown sent the ball flying to Ben Adams who scored easily. At the half the score was Comp 14, Chicopee 14 what a nail biter. Then toward the end of the game the score was 28-21, Comp was in the lead. Chicopee scored; they tried to score an extra 2 points but were shot down and missed by a foot. Holding them back was Darryl Brown and Ben Adams.

The football players and fans were ecstatic running to the center of the field to take back what's rightfully ours! "Being apart of the sword game and getting a victory was one of the most exciting moments of my life" said Neal Bournique. It's great to have the sword back at home!

-Stephanie Granger and Amelia Gualberto

The Varsity and JV football team that played in the sword game is showing off the sword. Unfortunately, some members of the team were not able to attend the photo. Mr. Scheurfeld's comment about the game was "L.A.I. & L.A.W. WON THE GAME!!" It was a well deserved victory good job guys!

Getting together before the game are Ashley Guilman, Janessa Pare, Amelia Gualberto, and Alicia Merola.

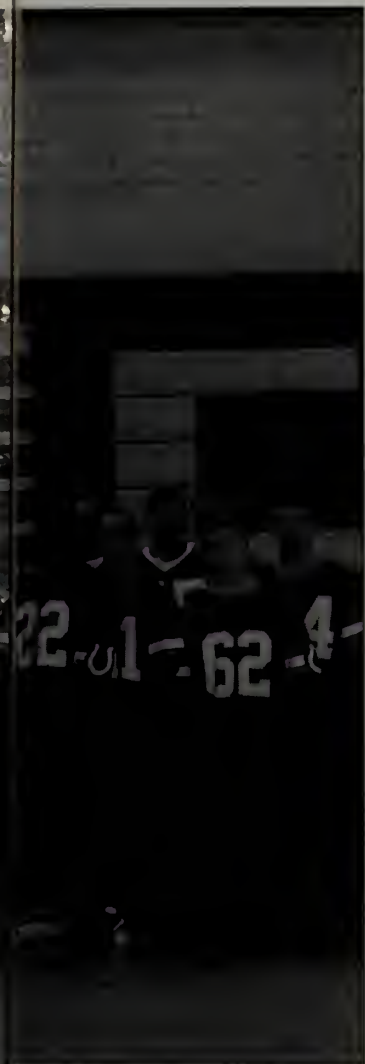

Decked with spirit these Junior girls gather before the game.

Some use ribbons, some use paint: these girls designed their nails to show their school spirit. (Clockwise) Shannon Sears, Rachel St. Laurent, Jen Hanarhan, and Emily Bennett, show off their nails at the sword game!

The prize from our victory, the famous sword, carved in Chicopee and used in the Civil War. We sure are proud!

The seniors sprint to the sword with excitement. Seniors are especially excited to have it back their last year at Comp.

Who do you run to when your parents ruin your life? Who consoles you when you've just been dumped? Who do you run to when you're down and you need a good laugh? The answer is your friends. Your true friends are there through the thick and the thin. Whether you met the first, lonely day of freshmen year or you've been joined at the hip since the first grade, friends are the most precious possession that you can have. The key to happiness in life is friendship.

The relationships you make throughout high school are the relationships that are going to stay with you throughout life, or at least you'll remember them for a long time. Some people don't make friends as easily as others do because they're different. You want to remember high school as the best four years of your life, not the four years that you spent making fun of people or being made fun of. So the next time you pass someone you wouldn't normally talk to, make a new friend or at least give them a smile. Go out of your way to interact with different kinds of people. Who knows, this could end up being one of the relationships that starts in high school and lasts a lifetime.

Nikki Columbe and Shannon Sears show thier pride at the sword game by sporting the schools colors. They show thier friendship by taking a minute to show thier blue and gold.

Natasha Santos and Jenn Krok flash a grin. They haven't known each other very long, but they show just how great of friends that came to be.

Friends since freshmen year, Doug Galiatsos, Josh Ulen, Andrew Lamothe, Aaron Lafond, Nick Tourville and Jon Garrity are all smiles at the junior prom. Jon Garrity says "A picture with the guys is a great start to a great night."

Even though the DJ was late the guest were right on time. The glamorous trio, Shannon and Stef Sullivan and Jen Kuc show up together at the junior prom.

Since they were little Stephanie Bergeron and Cheri Rosenski have been best friends. Sixteen years later they get even closer while at the cotillion.

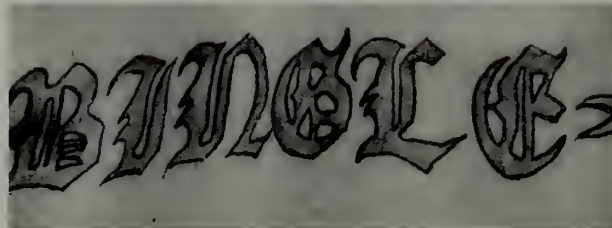

Showing off their belly button rings, Tammy Pires and Tambria Hebert say "It didn't hurt that much."

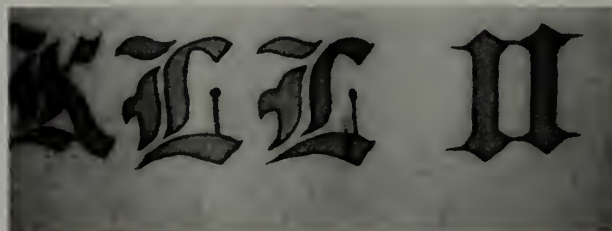

Showing of his pecs, and his labret post below his lip, is Jon Bingle

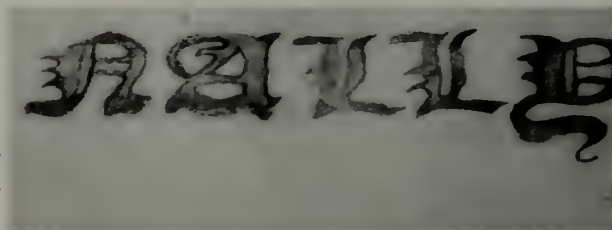

Expressing yourself through words isn't always easy. Some people like Jon Bingle express themselves with a tattoo of his name on his back.

KLL II stands for Kevin Leo Laflamme the Second. Kevin is on his fifth tattoo, three that he shows and two he's not very proud of. Kevin said, "If you're going to let someone put ink on you, make sure it's something you won't regret later."

Even though he only paid fifty dollars, at a tattoo party, Jay Nally shows he is proud of his last name and gets it tattooed in Old English style writing on his lower back.

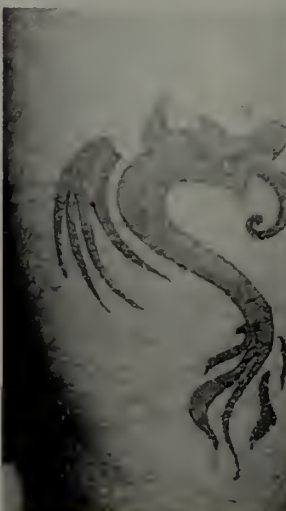

"It was more on an ongoing pain than a unbearable feeling," said senior Rachel Cramer. She found the design on the Internet.

Megan Grenier and Matt Dusseault like the eyebrow piercings, while Nick McDonald went for the tongue. Megan also has her belly button pierced and it is heard that Matt has a secret piercing very few have seen.

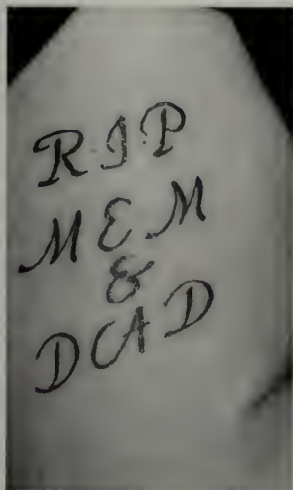

A simple dragon tattoo cost senior Jason Nally only fifty dollars at a shop in Springfield.

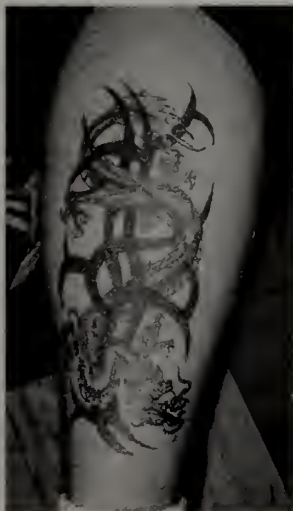

Senior Kevin Laflamme remembers his dad and his grandma with this tattoo.

Seniors Jerod Laflamme and Alexez Lamountain got one of the most popular piercings, the tongue. They both said, "It didn't hurt at all, not even a little." It cost sixty dollars.

All the detail in this evil dragon cost one hundred and ten dollars at a shop in Springfield. Jeremy Bruso said, "It only stung for a few minutes."

Express Yourself

Tattoos and piercings are a fad that has been around for quite some time though the idea of having a body part pierced five years ago was really different than it is today. Putting permanent ink in your skin started with the many Indian tribes which to them it symbolized a lot and it is popular today with many groups such as the Harley Davidson bike gangs.

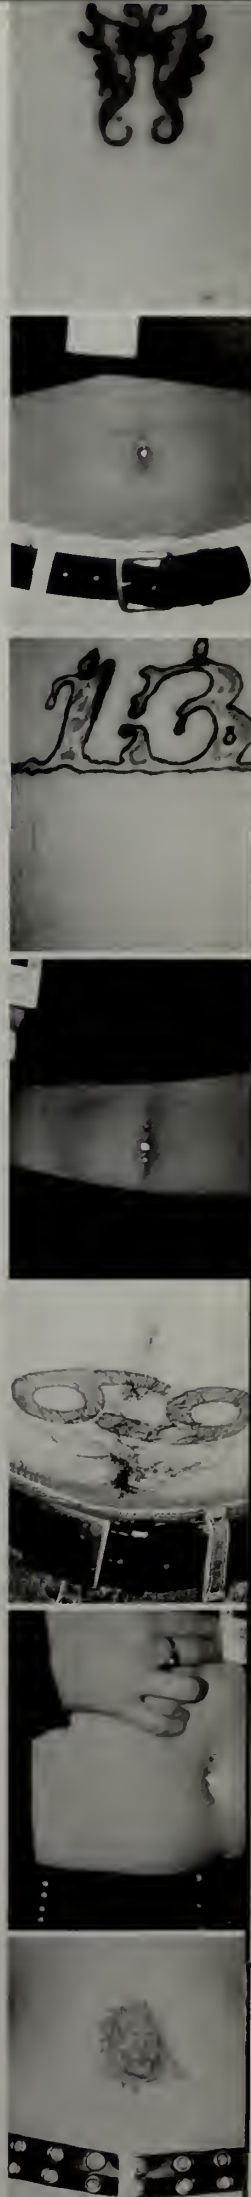

High school teens get tattoos and piercings to express themselves in more than one way. Whether they get a decorative tattoo or writing that means something to them, it's all an example of individuality. Senior Kevin Laflamme said, "I felt I had to get something in memory of my dad and grandma." Rachel Cramer got her tattoo and said, "I saw it on the Internet and I had to get it, it expressed me perfectly." The costs of tattoos range according to their size, color, time put in, and detail, which can be anywhere from twenty-five to hundreds, even thousands of dollars.

Some people might just get them because everyone else is but for the most part, to put something permanent on your body. You should put a lot of thought into what you will get.

On the other hand another way a person or groups of people express themselves is with body piercings. There is a wide variety of different body parts to be pierced and more to be found. The piercing that is seen the most is the ears but that's not unusual. Then we started seeing people with their eyebrows, tongues, noses, labrets, lips, belly-buttons, nipples, and even parts unseen pierced. Piercings can also range in costs depending on where you get them, but they usually cost forty to one hundred dollars.

Even though getting a tattoo or piercing is a form of art developed long ago, it is in style today.

Ashley Angel from O-Town performing at Club Avalon in Boston. This was the band's first US Tour.

Britain's own Christian, member of boy band trio BBMak, offers a cheeky smile. The group was caught by a group of fans in Boston, hours before their show.

Singing a cover of "Purple Rain," Erik from O-Town. They performed at the Big E on September 15, 2001, their first show of the year.

Backstreet Boy Nick Carter's kid sister Leslie, one of the many artists that performed at the All That Music and More festival, meets junior Sara Chevalier.

Supergirl Krystal takes time after every show to sign autographs for her fans. She spent the summer and fall opening for the Backstreet Boys Black and Blue Tour.

Who says boys can't wear make-up? Seniors Jeremy Brusco and Aaron Lafond get themselves pumped up before an Insane Clown Posse concert.

Taking time from their busy tour schedule, Deryck, Cone, and the rest of the boys from Sum 41 sign autographs before they performed that night at Radio 104 Fest.

Getting backstage is quite possible the best thing that can happen to you at a concert. Just ask freshman Jenn Glod. She met the guys of Godsmack, including her personal favorite, Sully Erna, the group's lead singer.

Star-Studded Student Run Ins

Hallelujah, it's Friday and school's out for the weekend. You have three whole days of freedom to have some fun. What will you do? Well, tonight your favorite rock band is doing an album signing at the mall, and on Saturday your favorite boy group is doing a concert in town. That gives you all day Sunday to recuperate from your weekend-o-fun. So grab a handful of friends and have a few nights to remember. And don't forget your camera just in case you happen to run into a member of the band. Hey, it's happens... just ask freshman Jenn Glod. "My cousin and I went to see Godsmack and Staind at the Mullins Center. As we were walking into the concert a DJ from Radio 104 gave us an after party pass. All the guys from Godsmack were really nice and cool. Meeting them made it a perfect night."

And we can't forget about junior Sara Chevalier. "I went to the All That Music and More Festival and all of the artists were signing autograph either before or after their set. So I went to meet Leslie Carter and I was so excited and nervous. I didn't know what to say so I just told her she looked exactly like her brother (Nick from Backstreet Boys)."

Even if you don't meet rub elbows with the band, just going to the concert itself is an amazing experience. At least that's what Senior Stephanie Scott said. "Ozzfest was my all-time favorite concert ever. Even though I got banged around in the mosh pit, it was well-worth every bruise."

You always "dream" of meeting your favorite celebs. Some dreams come true. Take Senior Erin Dubois for example. She met Melissa from P. Diddy's girl group Dream.

Hair pulling, biting, scratching, fighting all of these are outgrown as you get older. When you're nine, ten, and eleven years old all you do with your brother or sister is fight. Once you get to high school, you realize you could have some of the same friends, you might be on the same team, and you may even have the same classes. High school is a tough and fun place and if you really think about it your brother or sister is always there to lend a hand. No matter how many arguments you have they are always there for you. As we get older, we mature and see things differently. You notice your brother or sister is not the annoying little kid they used to be. You realize that actually they are one of your best friends. After high school, after college your brother or sister is still going to be there. We asked people what the good and bad things about having a sibling were. Stefanie Sullivan said that she loved having a twin most of the time, because there is always someone there for her to talk to. One of the downsides is that there is always someone there. Jay Nally said that it's good because there is someone to talk to, and if you're planning a party you have someone to help you. A bad thing is you have to wait for the shower and there's never enough food.

Freshman

"Being a freshman I feel like a baby all over again. All of our privileges have in a way been 'stripped' from us, but then again being in high school with all my friends (new and old) is a great feeling," said Caitlyn Moore about her first year.

They say that freshmen year is the most memorable and exciting year of high school. It is also the most nerve-wracking.

Freshmen year can seem like a scary thing. But at the end of the year you look back and realize that it wasn't so scary, but more of an experience. It's not about being "babies" all over again; being a freshman is about trying new things, joining new activities, and meeting new & interesting people. Being a freshman is about making new friendships and making the old bonds even stronger. Dan Godek put it this way, "High school is better than eighth grade, and its more fun. I can't wait until next year."

- Jenn Krok

Gathering together during Theatre Arts I, Lindsay Kue, Jennifer Hamel, Amanda Gauthier, Brittini Hamel, Maureen Bilodeau, and Emily Asselin show us their positive attitudes. This is the perfect class to "act" like they love being freshmen.

The twins, Brittini Hamel and Jennifer Hamel show their sisterly love. They prove that sisters can be the best of friends.

Lisa Jackson, April Goodman, James Spano, and Kyle Iwanicki try to pose like the picture behind them. It looks like it didn't go as planned.

2005

Caityln Moore and April Goodman think about upcoming challenges. As freshmen cheerleaders they'll never let us see a frown.

They know what it really means to be freshmen. Kyle Roberts and Miranda Beaulieu just met this year. They take a moment for a quick hug.

"Sportin' the hoodies," Allison Cookish, Brittany Castonguay, and Diana Galecki are ready for another casual day of being freshmen. Even when these days are over they'll always remember the good times they had during fifth period.

Only 3 years to go...

The class of 2005 began at Chicopee Comp this year, at first afraid of what may await them. Slowly becoming part of the school, they became used to the idea of finally being in high school. They continue the tradition of trying to shake off the 'little freshmen' label. Some of the freshmen this year are jumping right into school activities such as clubs like student council and key club, and many different sports.

Most of the 9th graders hope that this year goes by quickly, so they can become upperclassmen. Some other students take their time and enjoy the years while they are still here.

Starting at high school can be an exciting thing for many freshmen. First experiences such as the sword game, rallies, spirit week, and the cotillion, can make them feel as though they are part of the school. Being on a sports team or in a club can also help the freshmen feel more accepted. Even though some of the 9th grade students do have some rough times during their first year of high school, overall, freshmen year is a great experience.

On their Washington cruise, Amie Rousseau and Kerrie Bowden have the time of their lives as they dance together and enjoy close friendship.

Just the Beginning

Many freshmen come into their first year of high school with the thought that "I really don't want to be here..." As the years go on, they will probably realize that high school really isn't as bad as they may think. There are many different activities within the school that may help them find their niche and change their opinions. The freshmen this year will most likely have changed their views about high school by the time 2005 rolls around.

Some of the freshmen realize that a way to make high school more enjoyable, is to join sports and clubs. Most of the sports within Chicopee Comp have separate freshmen teams for those who want to start in a new sport or need to improve in their sport. There are also many clubs which all students of the school are allowed to join; these help give freshmen a head start at meeting upperclassmen and becoming a part of the school.

During lunch Thomas Therrian shows us that he can still be happy while being a freshman. He doesn't let being young affect his attitude.

Freshmen Tara Starke and Kira Bouchard pause for a moment in the hall while on a trip to their lockers. The hallway is a popular place for freshmen to hang out.

Sophomores

Sophomore year is a special year. You are finally not a freshman but still not an upperclassman. Finally you feel you start to belong.

This year the class sold candy to prepare for paying dues. The dues help them pay for senior week, senior prom, and their senior year yearbooks. Another important event was picking out their class rings. Amy Montemagni said, "It was a hard decision to make. I would ask my family and friends' opinion on which design to pick and which color stone I should have."

Sophomores also learn the value of their friendships. Friendships become more important than being really popular (like as thought in middle school). You seem to realize you lose valuable friendships with graduating seniors, but at the same time friendships within your class grow stronger.

As sophomore students realize that their grades now influence their future, they start to work harder. "This year has changed dramatically because last year I did better than this year opposing what guidance said would happen," said Tom Strzempek. This is also the first year that the class has officers to represent them in school events. Class Vice President Christine LaRoche said, "Sophomore year is a lot harder than freshman year but it's all worth it. I look forward to the rest of the year, but most of all the years of being an upperclassman!"

Working hard in Drafting Tech are Brandon Page, Christine Burgos, Jose Huertos, Nick Gagne, Josh Provost, Paul Sullivan, Dan Demers, Dan Duplisea, Robert Newsome, Tom Strzempek, and Wes Boncore. They take time out from their computer work to show their sophomore pride.

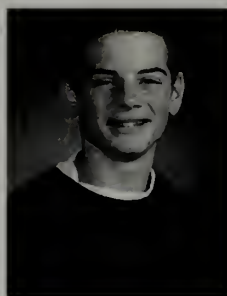

They always do everything together. It's no wonder Katie Bovino and Heather Moore are sticking together here.

"Friendship is the best part of high school," says Amelia Gualberto. These four girls, Christine LaRoche, Janessa Pare, Amelia Gualberto, and Alyssa Spano, prove this statement true.

Ashley Picon is 15 years old and in the tenth grade. Her favorite subject is Spanish, and her favorite teacher is Ms. Parzych. Ashley says she feels safe in our school, but she feels there are too many rules. In ten years from now Ashley sees herself living in New York with a friend. "The most valuable thing I have learned," Ashley says, "is to be considerate of others."

Alex says he does feel safe in school. In ten years from now he sees himself being a missionary. The most valuable thing he has learned as a sophomore is how to wire electricity. If Alex could change one thing about the school he would put prayer in school and study about the Bible in Social Studies.

Kyle Dubois is 15 years old. His favorite subject is American Government, and his favorite teacher is Mr. Czaprowski. Kyle participates in golf, swimming and baseball. Kyle says he does not feel safe in school. Ten years from now Kyle sees himself in the U.S. Marines. "The most valuable thing I have learned," Kyle said, "is to try and get along with people." Kyle said if he could change anything in this school, he would make every day a half a day and the school year longer.

Stylish Sophomores

Many students wake up in the morning not knowing what to wear. Will this look good? What's the weather like? What should I do with my hair?

These are just a few questions that run through the typical teenage mind. Still there are those few people who look stylish even on days they don't feel like putting up with these questions.

From spandex to bright colored jeans, bell bottoms to tights jeans, fashion has definitely changed over the years. Sophomores this year show that not only upperclassmen have style. Considering some of us have more luck than others at the mall, we all seem to find something to fit our sense of style. Overall style is a big part of the high school environment.

Juniors

Chillen' in the hallway, Ryan Banville, Adam Boissonneault and Nick Sicard wait for the first bell to ring. As juniors, they know next year waking up so early will be more of an option.

Junior year is an exciting and challenging year for many students. The realization sets in that we have all become upperclassmen. Junior year has many things to look forward to including PSAT's, competition with the Seniors throughout spirit week, and the Prom. Junior year for many students is an academic achievement year; many of the Juniors stride to do their best. Junior year is also a year for growing, growing older, more mature and growing closer with your friends. New friendships can be made, but for most of the students it means becoming closer with their recent friends. We know we will go into Senior year with a closely knit group of friends to finish our high school experience. Junior year holds many opportunities for all of us.

-Lisa Gawron

Michelle Labrecque and Renee Gagnon are looking flashy at the cotillion. They love dressing up and dancing the night away.

"Hey where the party at?" asks Jay Clark. He knows...as he looks fly with his rodeo getup. Juniors sure like to have fun.

Gathering in the kitchen, Nick Sicard, Andrea Scott, and Ryan Banville show a close friendship. They prove that three's company is not a crowd. They often came together for fun friend parties.

Hanging in the crowd and busting their groove, juniors Lisa Donnelly and Katlyn Picard danced the night away at the cotillion. The junior girls could often be found at gatherings having a good time.

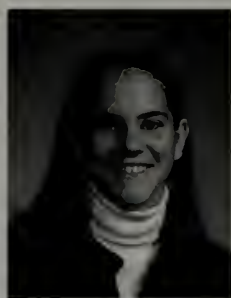

Partying like they should be and having a great time, Beckie Huerta and Rachel St. Laurent show that junior girls really know how to strut their stuff, doing the Bunny Hop.

Juniors pile up in the hallway first period to show their togetherness. The junior class can always be found bonding together for many events.

It's Their Third Year For Cheer

All eight of the junior cheerleaders have what it takes to win. That was shown when they took charge and came together to win the state championships. Junior Jamie Tellier says, "The second they called our name to go on the mat, the goosebumps started and the nervousness went away. It was time to strut our stuff!" People don't understand the hardships that these cheerleaders go through. Antoine Pierce and Louis Betancourt found out how tough it really is when they signed onto the squad. Pierce comments, "Any guy can hold a girl's hand, but only the elite can hold her feet."

Bonding together at cheerleading camp, Stacy Moreau and Jamie Tellier take a break after a long day in the sun doing that thing they do.

Academics . . . A Lifetime of

Labs and experiments are the best part of any science class. Just ask Mrs. Raymond's Math and Science Connections class. Here they are testing the pH level of water.

Look at those two. It's Mr. Schuerfeld and Mrs. Costello sharing another "intimate" moment.

Always there to help, Ms. Walczak gives junior David Cichonski a hand with his test in algebra.

Learning

When most people think of learning at school they think about the students. But are they the only ones learning here? With 185 days of school each year, even the teachers are bound to learn something.

Mrs. Starke says the most important thing she's learned being a teacher is that just about every student is good. "The goodness may be hard to find in some, but it is there!"

Mrs. Costello said, "I learned that a sense of humor helps tremendously when dealing with high school students."

Business Teacher Mr. Walsh said, "I'm continually amazed that the students do as well as they do despite so many adverse external conditions."

Mr. Czaporowski explained, "If you offer kids respect, they give it back to you."

Looks like the job finally got to Mrs. Kukahiko. Then again wouldn't we all like to ring Derek Passidakis' neck?

Juniors Katlyn Picard and Jillian Menec go over some figures with Mrs. Gil in their Entrepreneurship class. They also create a business and market their products to the students.

It's story time with Mr. Bowden. Today he is reading "Last of the Mohicans" to one of his and Mrs. Wilk's junior English classes.

Jobs for Baystate Graduates

Jobs for Baystate Graduates is taught by Mrs. Holly Sroka. The class teaches students basics for getting a job, making resumes and communicating in the business world. The class consists of 20 students who planned a party for the children at Lambert Lavoie on December 14 at 2:30. The students played games, played music and brought snacks for the children. They made decorations and put the party together themselves. Jobs for Baystate Graduates have been doing this for the past few years. The students enjoy doing this because they like to see the faces on the children. Mrs. Sroka said, "I am very proud of the students' long, hard work and enthusiasm in putting this event together. They used excellent leadership and team skills. I am especially happy for all of the individuals who were able to manifest their creative vision. A success for everyone."

Entrepreneurship classes sells commemorative key chains for a good cause

According to the entrepreneurship teacher Mrs. Janice Gil, "The purpose of the entrepreneurship class is to write a business plan and learn how to run a business, corporation, and an individual business. The students also learn about the freedom and challenges of owning your own business."

This year, the students have came up with the idea of selling picture key chains, and commemorative button key chains; both being sold for $3 each. Also, they are selling belly button and tongue rings for $10. When asked what she thought of the class, Natasha Santos replied, "It's a fun class, I feel like it prepares me for the future."

To purchase the items, the students buy and sell stock. They predict that they will double their investment. The proceeds for the commemorative key chains will go to the New York City Fire Department.

Health Careers Class Explores Opportunities in the Health Field

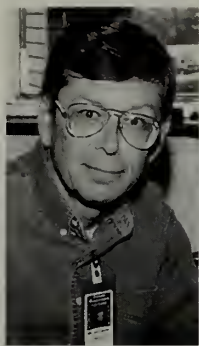

Nursing, Radiology, Massage Therapy, and Physical Therapy are among the many careers students learn about in Health Careers Class. Health Careers is a class designed to teach students about the many careers in the health field. "My favorite thing about this class are all the speakers that come into tell us about their careers," said Devan Daviau. Speakers come into class usually one or two times a week from different areas of the health field to speak and demonstrate about their job. For every speaker students write reviews about what they have learned. Some speakers have brought in the equipment and tools that they use on the job, like when students learned to take a person's blood pressure when the school nurse Mrs. Valley came to speak to them.

The human body is another thing taught in this class. Health Careers teacher Cynthia Heasley said, "Students have learned health related terminology, the different body systems like muscles, bones and joints, the respiratory system, and the cardiovascular system, and about the different careers."

The class also goes on field trips to hospitals and colleges. So far this year they have traveled to Shriners Hospital, Baystate Medical Center, and Springfield College. Lea Daigneault, another student in the class, said, "I like Health Careers because the speakers are very interesting and you learn a lot from them. The field trips are interesting too because I never knew that there was so much involved in health fields and I'm happy that I've gotten the chance to learn about them."

The Day of the Cafeteria Ladies

A cafeteria lady's day consists of many things. Each lady has a different responsibility. When they arrive in the morning they must start their work so that it is ready for lunch time. In the morning one lady takes care of the breakfast bar and the rest start their work.

They prepare a lot of food each day. Example. On Fridays when we have pizza they prepare over 600 pieces of pizza. They must cook enough food each day to serve 750-1100 students a day. If one of the workers isn't there one day there is no one to cook some of the food. An example is if the person that cooks the french fries isn't there then they can't make fries and all the students get upset.

Stressing out as usual, Mrs. Costello gets worried that Mr. Schuerfeld is going to forget about her when a hot young babe comes in as her replacement next year.

VOCATIONAL

Worth the training

Working with your hands can be a fun and rewarding job. When you think of a rewarding job you generally think about a job that involves helping people. Can you think of a better feeling than knowing people really enjoy the work that you do? Students in the vocational program will be able to get that feeling every time they go to work. Their training in school may be long and tedious, but it is worth it. "I like the vocational program because of the hands-on experience," says sophomore Daniel Demers when asked why he chose to take vocational.

There are many different shops in the vocational program which allow the student to be able to explore every kind of vocational learning. Freshman year they are scheduled to take all of the vocational shops. After they finish all shops they choose three shops that they really enjoyed, and then they finally choose the one that they will take for the rest of high school. Sophomore year vocational students have three periods of shop and four periods of academics. Junior and Senior year their vocational time is increased to four periods a day.

All of these hard working students will be our electricians, auto mechanics, drafters, welders, landscapers, and everything else that we need to run our homes and cars. They are very important to our every day lives. Not to mention they will make a lot of money, and they will earn every dime.

-Valarie Perreault

Wes Boncore and Daniel Demers focus hard on their drawings. Every picture must be neat and exact. I am sure that neither of them have a problem making their pictures perfect.

Junior Paul Gilbert stands safely away from his machine while he works. You don't want to get hurt by one of these machines. OUCH!

Leveling the blocks to put the new sports shed on, Justin Brown and Steve Hortie pause for a moment to think. Everything has to be accurate when building things. Nothing is left to guessing.

Fixing a shelving unit, Steve Brown practices what he has learned in carpentry. Let's see if he has the skills that it takes.

Cooking buddies Jessica Bergeron, Vanessa Vaudrin, and Melissa King take time away from their cooking masterpiece to be silly. A joke every now and then helps to break the tension.

ELECTRICAL

Lights off! If you need a light in your class just call Jeromy Rolden, Jessica Bergeron, Monica Mercil, Tim Beaulieu, Luis Camacho, and Nuno Boas. They'll be there to fix the lights or outlets. The electrical shop does a lot of hands on work around the school. In class they learn how to do work in different fields like residential wiring, motor controls, electrical service, programmable motor controllers, and security/alarm systems. There are many things you can become, Journeymen, residential electrician, commercial electrician, industrial electrician, motor control technician, security system technician, or electrical engineer. Mr. Davidson is the one to go to if you have any problems with the lights.

Scott McCray is working on his service job in electrical shop. He's learning how to put a service on a house for someone some day.

Good Pay! In the electronic technician field, they do a lot of hands on training in class. Josh Ulen, Chris Kubetin, John Pope, Kevin Laflamme, Mike Delude, Jeff Lafleche, and George Fournier learn how to do things like computer repair, repair of electronic equipment, networking systems, fiber optics, and digital electronics. When a teacher is in need of repair, the students of Mr. Ziembra and Mr. Stefanowicz are on the job. They have many choices in this field. They can become an automatic teller machine (ATM) repair person, technician, communication repair technician, electronic equipment service technician, medical equipment technician, service technician, or mobile communication technician.

Look at Jeff Lafleche working on the high wires!

Kevin Laflamme loves to work on computers.

WORTH THE PRACTICE

Two years ago students were not signing up to take the welding course. Then the art department got involved. Once they got involved, students started taking the course. Now Mr. Gassnola has more than enough students to fill his classes. For two periods, art students combine forces with the welding students to make projects. This could turn into an adventurous job in the future.

Underwater welding is one of the one of the things the future holds for welding/metal fabrication students.

Drilling on the lathe is no easy task, but in his first year in machine shop student, sophomore, Paul Madeleski handles it well.

During the last four years of Machine Shop, many changes have been made. Adjusting down from three teachers to one is a difficult task. Mr. Carroll is the only teacher, now that there has been a cut in vocational teachers. He has turned the program around and it's improving every day. From freshman years yo-yo project to senior year programming and chess set, the "Crew" always displays good hard work. Senior year you can adventure into Co-op life and experience the real world of Machining Tech. This class is the place to be in if you like excitement and lots of changes.

Picture Perfect

If you ever need help on your car call for Will Andrade, David Dubreuil, Joe O'Sullivan, Tom Joly, Nick McDonald, and Jon Bingle. They like working on cars. What they like best is that they can fix their own cars. This way they can save money by working on their own car or truck. They have hands-on training with alignment systems operation, tire repair & balancing, computerized diagnostics information systems, engine diagnostics, and ASE repair competencies. Mr. Syriac and Mr. Williams teach the students that they can go into the fields of automotive service technician, automotive transmission technician, automotive alignment technician, automotive parts technician, automotive electronics, and systems specialist. Mr. Syriac enjoys teaching students to get them ready for years to come.

Ouch! Need body work done on your car? Come and see Bryan Bangle, Chad Bassett, Matt Taft, Nat Mercier, and Carlos Rosario; maybe they can help. They do hands on work like vehicle painting, collision damage repair, computer/laser analysis of damage, panel removal and replacement, strip and design application. Mr. Perez teaches the students about different fields like auto body repair technician, auto body painter, auto glass technician, automotive detailer, and collision repair technician. So if you need a fix make a call to the Auto Body shop. Mr. Perez said that his students have good potential in the field of Auto Body. Matt Taft said, "I think that I will like to go to school to learn more about vehicle painting and collisions damage repair, because as long there are drivers there will be collision. Also people will want to change the color of the vehicles."

WORDS OF THE WISE

Wood! Would you like to build something on your own out of wood? Well Aaron Lafond, Ben Adams, Dan McCarey, and Edgar Ramos do. They do hands-on training in blueprint reading, estimating materials, building components, terminology, operation of power tools, and on-site building construction experience. Mr. Stykiewicz and Mr. Ingram prepare them for many positions including framing carpenter, finish carpenter, roofing carpenter, insulation technician, and vinyl siding application technician. They made the gazebo in the courtyard and the working house for the electrical students. Also, they are working on a shed on the softball field. These projects are interesting and help the student with the responsibilities of being a carpenter.

FOOD PRODUCTION

IT'S WELL WORTH THE WAIT

The Compachinos Cooking Staff.....MmmMmm Good!!

During this very active day in Compachinos, Mrs. Kaigle and Mrs. Coleman finish their very appetizing lunch.

In Food Production and Management Services the student learns the skills to become an outstanding chef. Cake decorating skills have been developed in the students' curriculum. Wedding cakes with intricate designs, patterns and flowers are one of the many types of cakes that are designed. Another dessert that is learned is pedafors. They are the small chocolates you would find in an expensive chocolate store. Compachinos, our very own in-school restaurant, is a very big part of their class. The students take charge of the restaurant. Compachinos is open two days a week for the faculty and students. The restaurant is a great opportunity to learn about the restaurant business and how to prepare food. After about three challenging years in this trade, the students get the chance to apply their skills at such colleges as Johnson and Wales.

CISCO

The CISCO network academy program raises the question, "are you ready for the future?" It's estimated that 1.6 million jobs will require information technology related experience this year, and of these jobs 850,000 will go unfilled because of a shortage of qualified workers. The CISCO networking program is nothing like electronics shop, but they both deal with computers. The CISCO networking program teaches the students how to design, build and maintain computer networks. The CISCO certifications enable the students to be certified at various proficiency levels including associate, professional, and expert. This is a promising field to go in given the projected need.

Drafting Technology (CAD)

A picture that works

This class of juniors and seniors is one group of smart students. Mr. Ingram is proud to teach these students because he knows they all have bright futures.

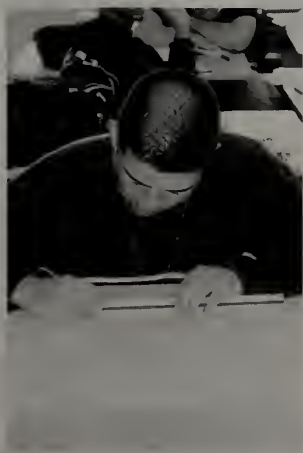

Working hard in Drafting Technology is what helps Ashely Mongeau keep her good grades.

Drafting is a type of work that will always be needed. The more we move into the future, the more everything has to do with computers. Before building or making something, you make a blueprint of it; that is done on the computer. They have hands-on training in different programs such as Autocad, Mechanical, and Architectural Desktop. They also learn conventional drafting techniques. They have many pathways such as engineering aide, architectural engineer or technician, civil engineer or technician, mechanical engineer or technician, and computer aided drafting technician. All his students enjoy working with Mr. Ingram and say he is a good teacher.

GROUND MAINTENANCE

As Bruce Negrón, Andrew Avery, and teacher Mr. Stolar place blocks around the pond, Jeffery McCarthy looks on at what to do. When the pond is finished, it will be a great aspect of the courtyard.

Kevin Jozefowicz, Shawn Murphy, Louis Goncalves, Michael Scarbrough, Joe Banning, Nathan Bean, with Mr. Stolar behind them take a break from their work on the courtyard.

Our vocational Ground Maintenance course is new this year, and is similar to the landscaping course offered here at Comp. Students have worked hard compiling elements for the courtyard.

The class has also been dedicated to making the school and grounds look presentable. The ground maintenance crew helped out the landscaping class by helping them put elements of the courtyard together, such as the gazebo, the pond, the stone walk, and sculpture. The ground maintenance class has been a success and hopefully it will be around next year.

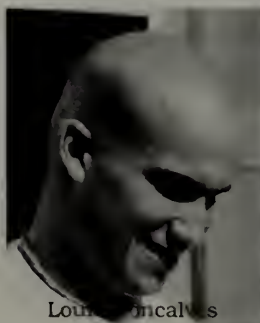

Shaping a stone to fit around the pond, Nathan Bean works hard to make it fit perfectly. Nathan has been helping out with the creation of the pond most of the year.

Carrying cement blocks for the retaining wall in the courtyard, Louis Goncalves uses all his strength.

Chipping away at a stone to put around the pond as a border, Kevin Jozefowicz and Louis Goncalves make it look perfect. A set of stones will look great around the pond.

Michael Robert tapes together a carnation during his horticulture exploration class. The students say they enjoy working with Mr. Mislak.

Our Vocational landscaping course works on making the school more attractive. Most recently the vocational students have worked on the courtyard. They spent a great deal of time designing and putting together the elements of the courtyard. Many individual elements such as the gazebo, the pond, the stone walk, and the sculpture took a great deal of time and planning. The students also work on keeping the area around the school beautiful. We are glad to have the landscaping students work on our school and its surroundings.

What Keeps Them Going?

They say a picture is worth 2002 words. You can clearly see in our athletes' expressions that this statement is true. 2002 words can't even express how an athlete feels. Being an athlete, you really learn a lot. You learn dedication, teamwork, skills, and many other important qualities in life. You meet a lot of new people with the same interest as you. Whether you win or lose each game or match is a learning experience for everyone.

We recently asked the coach of the indoor track, Ms. Potorski, what she thought her athletes learned the most from being in a sport. She replied, "Because track and field is such an individualized sport, many of the athletes have learned that they have to be self motivated when it comes to training for their events. If a coach can not stand over their shoulders and watch/guide them, they have to have the determination to work hard and complete whatever they want to accomplish."

We also asked swimmer Larissa Perreault who said, "I learned to manage all my responsibilities. From going to school then practice every day, and I still make time for my homework."

Overcoming The Odds!

Like our coach Wally Desautels said, "It was fun, but it was not meant to be." Our season was by far a winning one with an eight and three record, tying Comp's best season ever.

Preseason conditioning started with our summer passing team, which went undefeated and in the tournament was the only Western Mass team to make it to the finals. Captain's practices started next, lead by senior captains Jason Nally and Tony Couture. "Captain's practice was good we got pretty much everyone in decent or great shape," said Couture. Practice started with coaches Desautels, Marc Schuerfeld, and Rich Kagan. A week before our first game Tony Couture felt sick and would be out for a few games. Everyone stepped up to play positions they never have before.

After a win over Agawam, we were all fired up to face our rival Chicopee High. A couple of keys plays like Daryl Brown's stop in the fourth helped us come out on top. Next was Ware, our first away game and also our first loss. Hoosac Valley traveled to our field to get beat by the Colts for the first time ever. The following week Greenfield became our second away game and loss. Everyone knows Commerce was the team to beat and we came close when time ran out we were only trailing by one touchdown. This ended our Super Bowl chances.

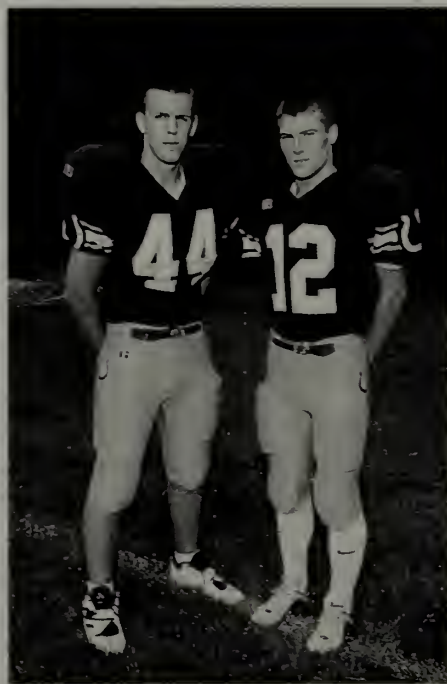

Coach Schuerfeld gave us some options: 1. to quit, 2. to spoil everyone else's season and win our last five games. We made our decisions. "The last couple weeks of practice were fun, no yelling and no pressure, we just had fun," stated senior TE Ben Adams.

East Longmeadow came and the battle ended victoriously in our favor. The following week West Springfield came to our field and also left with a loss.

The last week of practice was emotional, especially when coach Wally announced he would be retiring after the game on Thanksgiving. "I want to go out in style with the seniors," he said. So now not only were we playing for pride, and revenge, but now for our coach.

Thanksgiving morning came and we all came ready to play. After the game we walked off the field as seniors for the last time as champions.

Our Journey to the Tourney

After losing ten seniors, the lady Colts had their hands full with rebuilding the team. Having a very inexperienced roster, the Colts knew their goal to make it to the tournament wouldn't come easily.

Preseason is where it all started. Double sessions are never fun, but this is where we saw all the desire and determination our players had. We started the season off with a loss and we knew we had to come together as a team before we started winning. We kept working hard and learning more and more about our teammates. With this hard work along came some victories.

Towards the end of our schedule we had to win games against teams that we lost to the first time that we played them. We knew we were a better team now but this wouldn't come easily. The first time we played Monson they beat us 6-0. Going into that game they had much more confidence than we did. This didn't matter though. We came out strong and came out of it with a tie which helped us make it to the tournament.

When varsity coach Julie Pavoni was asked what game was the most important, she said, "Every game in the season is important but a few stand out. Easthampton was definitely one of the most important because it got us into the tournament." Mrs. Pavoni also added that "there was a lot of improvement this year. We scored more goals and gave up less goals than in the past few years. Overall the teamwork was much better."

In conclusion the girls' soccer team had a successful season. This year was a rebuilding year for them and they definitely rebuilt a great team. Future success for them looks very optimistic.

A Hope To Do Better Next Season

The boys' soccer team went 0-18-2, due to having many young and new players. The quad-captains (Krzysztof Wanat, Doug Galiatsos, Bryan Russell, and Michael Jarmuzewski) did an excellent job keeping the team together throughout the season. Juniors Jarid Provost, Andrew Provost, Chris Fredette, Matthew Cantin, Kyle Danis and Zachary Siano helped bring the younger players to the varsity level. Rounding off the team were sophomores Nicholas Gagne and Jeremy Nadaud, and freshmen Ryan Martineau, Kyle Alstede, Brandon Mancini, Derek Krow, and Ryan Moge.

Even though they had a tough season, they all stuck with it and kept their attitudes up. Giving each other encouragement and support, at practice and at games helped them keep their spirits up. Kyle Danis said that their motto "What time is it?... It's game time Voo!!" also helped them keep their spirits up. "Even though it was a rough season, we got through it and had some fun times," said Matt Cantin and Danis. The year ended with hope for a better season next year.

We had a great group of kids. It would have been nice to get a win or two during my senior year. I am hoping this will not be the end of soccer for me," said Russell.

Seniors Krzysztof Wanat, Mike Jarmuzewski, Bryan Russell, and Doug Galiatsos played their last season of soccer here at Comp. "As a senior and a captain of this young group, it was very hard trying to be a leader and setting an example was tough. I have to be a leader both on and off the field and in school," said Jarmuzewski.

Mid-fielder Derek Krow (9) kicks the ball up field. As one of the four freshmen players on varsity, coach Carlos expects that he'll be a great help in the forthcoming seasons.

Struggling to finish the race, junior Kevin Dwyer puts his all to be first.

Running this season for the boys' cross country team wasn't very easy, but they prepared themselves very well. The team only had five boys, Joe Czupryna, Kevin Dwyer, John Krzystofik, Bryan Carrier, and David Forrette.

The team was the smallest team in Western Mass with only five runners. The boys ended up with 6 wins and 9 losses, but four of the last meets were lost by less than three points because of the amount of runners.

In the post season, they came in 12th out of the 32 at the PVIAC led by Joe Czupryna who placed 25th in boys' cross-country for Western Mass. At the Western Mass Championship, the team came out 6th of 22 teams.

Summing up the season Junior Dave Forrette said, "I think a lot of positive things came out this season, our entire team made incredible improvements. Next year I believe we will be one of the top teams in Western Mass."

Coach Davis said the team impressed tremendously at the end of the season. This year's team ended up to be one of the best teams in spite of having only five runners.

GIRLS' CROSS COUNTRY

Small in Size, Huge in Style

Not having many returning runners this year, the girls' cross country team basically started from scratch. Except for seniors Heather Wenninger, Kat Meade, juniors Beckie Huerta, Andrea Lazier, and sophomore Stephanie Granger not many of the new runners of the team had run more than four miles in their lives. Fortunately for the girls, Wenninger was on the team. Winning all but one meet, a top finisher in PVIAC and Western Mass, and making States, she contributed tremendously. On the other hand, they are losing two seniors which always placed in the top five for the team. Jobs and activities also were a huge inconvenience for the team. Not making practices and all the meets doesn't help anyone improve.

Although there weren't many girls, this year's cross country team will never be forgotten for their style. With cat collars, striped tights, and high socks, they sure looked good. This year they also expressed intense emotions: complaining, listening, and having a good time is what made it so fun. Cross country is not always about the running; it's about the experience, the people you meet, and just being yourself!

-Stephanie Granger and Amelia Gualberto

"Give me a C..." The team, getting ready to run, gets together for a group cheer before the race.

Exhausted from the race, Amber Hewes and Lisa Donnelly catch their breath.

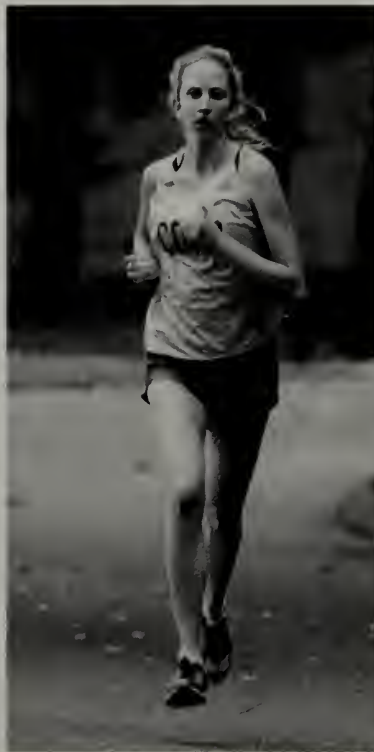

The two senior captains who will really be missed next year are Kat Meade and Heather Wenninger.

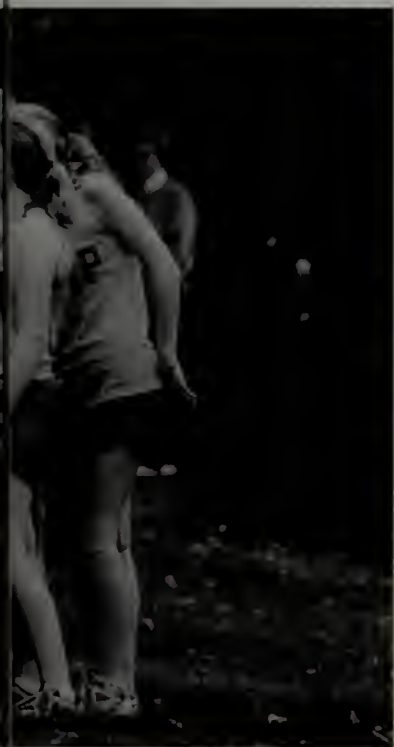

Going for the win as usual, Heather Wenninger gives it all she has. Heather made it to states for cross country and placed 12th in Nebraska for the Jr. Olympics.

Off to a good start Stephanie Granger fights for second against Sci-Tech and Northampton.

Almost there, Alyssa Rallis followed by Melissa Albrecht sprint to the finish line after a 3 mile race.

"Great run!" Kat Meade and Sam Bartosz congratulating each other on a job well done.

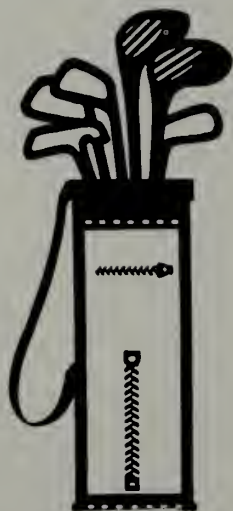

Starting out strong, the team gets going on their 3 mile race.

On Their Way to a Better Season

GOLF

This year's golf team had a rebuilding year. Although James Garvin's solid leadership kept the team going, the team lacked seniors, therefore they had a hard time competing against seniors of other teams.

This year's team consisted of four juniors, James Garvin, Jay Clark, Nick Sicard, and Brian Lavalley, and five sophomores, Ryan Franczek, Bob Dooley, Joe Sawa, Kyle Dubois, and Kevin Peloquin.

Sophomore Ryan Franczek had a good season this year, holding the number one spot. Captain James Garvin held the number two spot. Nick Sicard filled the number three spot. Joe Sawa held the number four spot, while Jay Clark had a solid season in the fifth spot. "I play to win, but mainly my reason for playing is to have a good time," said Clark. Sophomore Bob Dooley held the number six spot, and Brian Lavalley, Kyle Dubois, and Kevin Peloquin held various spots throughout the year.

Although the golf team had a tough season this year, there is still hope to do better next season. Also, with the hope of all of them returning they think next season will turn out to be a successful one. Dedication is important and they seem to all have that quality so, hopefully they will all return and next season will be more of a success.

Comp Still Strong after Loss of Players

With the loss of twelve players from last year's team who maintained fifteen wins and six losses, this year's team still managed to win thirteen, tie two, and lose six. Both years the team made it to the Western Mass Tournament, gave it their all despite the fact that they lost.

The team consists of twenty players with half of them returning from last year's season. Captains were Brian Moller and Kyle Danis. The team is coached by Roger Bowden with the assistance of Bob Badone, Tim Tadeo, and Chris Trigo.

Everyone on the team contributed so much towards the season, especially junior Kyle Danis. Danis had 48 goals and 23 assists, ending with 71 points this season. Danis led all Western Mass this season with this record. Danis was one of the three Co-MVP winners this season. The other two Co-MVP winners were sophomore Tom Demers and senior Brian Moller.

Coach Roger Bowden stated, "Despite the losses, this year's varsity hockey team had a surprisingly successful season. Although they did not win their league, they almost matched last year's record winning 13 games, tying twice, and matching last year by losing only five games. A surprising contender for the league title again, the hockey team qualified for the Western Mass tournament for the fifth time in the past seven years."

The newcomers who stepped into the lineup and played key roles included senior forward Bryan Klein, junior defenseman Bryan Jones, sophomore Mike Klang who was equally effective at forward and defense, and freshmen forwards Darryl Gagnon and Dan Godek. Other newcomers that worked hard improved remarkably, gained some varsity experience, and will become contributors in future seasons, include Eric Dube, Mike Quinones, Wes Boncore, Jim Rivest, and Greg Pronovost. Tom Demers, Nick Sicard, Matt Grzelak and Steve Bigos stepped into the varsity lineup and made major contributions. These players will be back for what promises to be even a better season next year.

Watching the progress of the race, Anne Krzystofik lets a Comp swimmer know what lap they are on. Anne, a sophomore, has been on the swim team for two years and enjoys it very much.

Mercer Guides Team During First Year Coaching

In Mr. Mercer's first year coaching, the girls' swim team had a fun and exciting year. Even through their ups and downs, they stuck together. They made the word "teamwork" come to life. The girls gave a lot of effort and put much dedication into their swimming finishing with a 4-7 record.

During practices they play games such as Christmas relays, water polo, and shipwreck to break up training which was very difficult. The training took a lot of time and hard work. Practices took place every day for two hours even during Christmas vacation.

Some of the girls were able to compete in the Western Massachusetts competition. Shannon MacNeal swam the 200 meter and the 100 meter breast stroke. Larissa Perreault and Kat Meade both swam the 50 meter freestyle. Lindsey Bartosz swam the 100 meter butterfly and the 100 meter backstroke. For the relays Jen and Brittini Hamel, Larissa, and Shannon swam the 400 meter freestyle and Lindsey, Shannon, Kat, and Larissa swam the 200 medley relay.

Some of the girls that did well in Western Mass went on to the state competition. Kat Meade swam the 50 free, Lindsey Bartosz swam the 100 backstroke, and for the relays Lindsey, Jen, Kat, and Larissa swam the 200 medley, 200 freestyle, and the 400 freestyle.

When Amanda Dupuis was asked what her favorite stroke was and why she chose swimming as a sport, she replied, "My favorite stroke would have to be the breast stroke. I began to swim because swimming allows you to be competitive with yourself."

Overall this year has been fun and exciting. Everyone is awaiting next year's swimming season with great expectations.

Freshmen Help Pull It Together

S W I M M I N G B O Y S

The boys' swim team started off their season with a new coach and everyone as excited to see how the season would go. As a team they had their ups and downs throughout the season, but with the help of the coach, Mr. Mercer, they were able to stick together. The team was well rounded and always had fun, especially before home meets. They had a fairly successful season with everyone improving their times.

This year freshmen played an important role in the team as well. They helped pull it all together and gave the team the extra swimmers they needed to beat some of the tougher teams. Jonathan Ruell really helped the team out towards the end of the season. "We had a great season, the freshmen stepped up and helped returning swimmers win the meets we needed to win," said Aaron Lafond.

When asked how he felt about having a new coach, sophomore Kyle Dubois said, "He's a great coach and is always willing to help." Coach Mr. Mercer responded by saying, "It was an exciting season marked by great improvement by the young swimmers and outstanding leadership by the seniors."

Many swimmers plan on returning next year and they are looking forward to having another successful season. Returning juniors are hoping to have as fun and successful of a season as this year's seniors did. If they have Mr. Mercer's help again next year, they are sure they can.

-Larissa Perreault

Mike Johnson may look like he's swimming dog paddle but, it's really breaststroke, a stroke he improved upon all season.

Coach is giving his routine pep talk with a serious look. The usual talk is a motivational quote and some encouraging words. This helps the guys get pumped up and ready to win the meet.

Seniors Robert Dout and Aaron Lafond have been swimming together for four years. "It's been fun and I know I will miss it next year," commented Dout. Together Robert and Aaron made the best of their last season by leading the team through hard work and good times.

Cheerleaders Go All The Way to Florida

The Colts cheerleaders 2001-2002 season started early with weekly practices and a week long camp held at Southern Connecticut State University. These summer practices prepared them for the long football, basketball, and competition season. The girls loved cheering at football games especially when their guys won the sword, having a winning season and almost going to the bowl. "Cheering at he football games is really fun, and the only bad part is the cold," said senior Cassandra Duval. "My favorite part of the games is when we hold the banner and the guys run through it, but it's even better when they run through and fall on the ground."

States came right after and this was the first competition for some of the girls, but they did great, getting first place in the coed division and getting an invite to nationals in Florida. Basketball season was next, followed by the team's trip to nationals. It was an experience they will always remember. The girls and two guys placed 15th out of 30 teams. Even though they didn't come in first place, they put on a first place performance. After nationals, the following competitions were all victories, taking first place at all of them.

"In my previous years of cheerleading, there has never been an experience like my senior year. We accomplished so much this year. We achieved two state titles and we did very well in our national competition in Florida. I will miss this 2001-2002 team the most. To my team, you guys are great, you all give me individual inspiration in everything I do. I love you guys," said Duval.

Running to the Finish Line

I N D O O R

Being in its second year as a winter sport, there was a lack of interest in going out for the team at first. However, as the season went on, indoor track became more popular. The boys encouraged their friends to join the team so that they could have a competitive team. The girls however, did not have a hard time finding members for their team.

Every meet is held at Smith College. Since the guys and girls teams are held at the same place, the meets are long and there is a lot of waiting involved. They have various events that they can compete including high jump, shot put, and several running events. Chelsea Harris, a member of the girls' track team stated, "We had a good season but more importantly, we had a lot of fun this season."

They compete all year hoping to qualify for the Western Mass tournament and then go on to States. Lea Daigneault, Heather Wenninger and Brittany Maciolek qualified for states which was held at Reggie Lewis Center in Roxbury. "Making it to states was a good honor, maybe a bit intimidating, but it makes you realize that you qualified and you deserve to be there. It was a very good experience," stated Brittany Maciolek. Heather Wenninger then went on to All-States competition.

T R A C K

Competing in shot put, senior Lea Daigneault (548) throws her hardest. With this throw, she hopes it goes a little bit further than last time.

Running the 600 meter, junior Chelsea Harris (553) fights to beat her previous time. Hoping that her lucky "Survivor Buff" helps her win, she stays in front of her competition.

(Left) Competing in the one mile, Nick Gagne (561) pushes his hardest to place well. He concentrates on making it to the finish line with a good time.

Jumping with all his force, Deshawn Westley pushes his limits. Not worried about his competition, he keeps thinking of first place.

Staying ahead of the others, junior Alyssa Rallis (551) keeps her eye on the finish line. "Even though I don't place all the time, I push my hardest to achieve my best time."

Bad Winter for the Ski Team

The ski team had a hard time this year starting off the season because of having hardly any snowfall. It was hard for them to have quality practice time but the team took advantage of the little time together to develop into a devoted team. The boys' ski team captains were Eric Clapp and Chris Boisselle and for the girls' ski team it was junior Katlyn Picard. The boys' ski team completed the season as the fifth place team in the C Division while the girls placed third. The girls' ski team started the year with only three racers but throughout the season developed three other skiers into racers. All the members of the ski team were also able to dramatically improve their times throughout the season.

"With all the six skiers returning next year, the Colts are looking forward to another exciting winter," commented coach Pavoni on her outlook for next year.

Giving it her all, girls' captain Katlyn Picard falls in the wet, hard snow. Despite being only a junior Katlyn shows great qualities of being a leader.

Taking a break from practice, sophomore Ashley Desmarais and senior Greg Gagnon, show how well the boys' and girls' ski team are bonded together. Playing a sport usually means you have to be serious, but these guys show that you can still have time to be laid back.

Fighting to keep his balance, Senior Doug Galiatsos #54 races down the slope to the finish line. Even though this is his first year on a ski team, Doug has devoted himself to trying his best every time he races.

Junior Emily Chagnon concentrates on performing a perfect 10 routine. We can only imagine what is going through her mind before she begins her big stunt.

Gymnastics

At the beginning of the season, the team knew they would have to work very hard. Not only did they know that, but they knew they were going to have a fun season. They had some good times and some bad times, but the team was always there for each other.

The team had a lot of spirit and dedication. With seven new freshmen on the team and one boy, the team was looking good. With their dedication, hard work, and practice the team did a great job. The team consisted of three seniors, two juniors, one sophomore, and seven freshmen.

It was a sad but fun time for the seniors. It was their last year and they are going to miss being on the team as well as the team members and coaches. "I've had so much fun being on the team for four years, and I'm really going to miss it," exclaimed senior Jess Downie.

As a nice way of saying good-bye to the seniors, the team put on a show at the end of the season. According to senior Devan Daviau, "The show was great and it was a great way of saying good-bye to the seniors."

Powdering up and getting ready for her routine on the bars, freshman Lindsay Martin looks excited to begin her event. The powder is important to them so that their hands do not slip off the bars.

Taking a break from their hard work are seniors Jessica Downie, Devan Daviau, and Heather McGrath. Next year's team will not be the same without them.

Bending over backwards, Michelle Barlow performs a great floor routine. Being flexible can really help in gymnastics.

(Above) Taking the ball up the court junior Kelly Koske (30) thinks of what play to run. Kelly has played at the varsity level for the past two seasons and is a great asset to the team.

Junior Michelle Labrecque uses her amazing head fake against her defender Jenn Leonard, of Chicopee High. Michelle is a great asset to the team, and as a senior next year she will have a bright future. Michelle has played on the varsity level since freshman year.

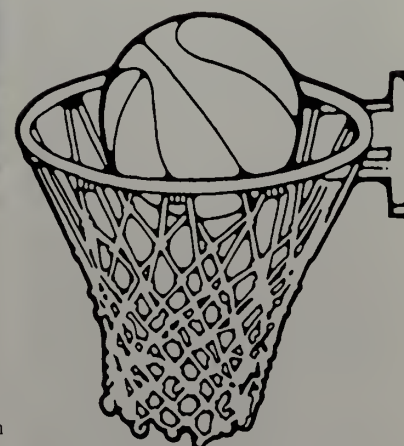

Senior Ashleigh Barrows sinks her foul shot. A great foul shooter is an asset to the team. Ashleigh had a great season with her foul shots.

A Learning Season for the Lady Colts

BASKETBALL GIRLS

Coach Alex Vyce completed his second year back after a long awaited return. He worked the girls almost every day getting them ready for the season.

The ladies put all their effort and more into playing, and it showed in many of the games. The season's ending record was 7-13. Coach Vyce hoped to have a better season and to make it to the tournament. "Although we didn't realize our preseason goals, we did achieve success in many other areas. We were competitive with our independent schedule but we were very successful in our league (5-3). A major contribution from our seniors set the tone for a winning attitude throughout the season," stated coach Vyce.

Senior Ashleigh Barrows mentioned, "I had a lot of fun this year, we worked hard and never gave up, that's what's important. I wish luck to those on next year's team." Ashleigh has played on the varsity level for the past two seasons with coach Vyce.

Captain of the JV team, Lindsay Howell, explained that "This year the teams, JV and varsity, learned that greater achievements could be accomplished by working together as a team. It took a long time to learn that." Holly Robbins, who played both JV and varsity, also said, "This year was a tough season at first because our team members didn't really 'click' and work together. After a while, things began to work out for us. I can't wait for next season. It should be awesome."

Many of the players of the varsity and JV teams said that they had a great time this year. It was a good experience, they learned a lot and had fun.

(Above) During the game against Chicopee at Herbert H. Curry Gym, Rachel Pluta (20) goes up for a lay-up. Unfortunately the girls had lost this game 47-37. Rachel was out for most of the season due to injuries, but made a great impact when she played.

(Left) With great leadership and teamwork, captains Ashleigh Barrows and Alexez Lamountain led the team through a great season. The ladies have shown the reasons, both on and off the court, why there are captains.

Supporting their teammates from off the court are Billy Stewart, AJ Bealieu and Andrew Lamothe.

Colts Roll to Thirteen of Fourteen During Season

Boys Basketball

The Colts 2001-2002 basketball season started off as a slow one with a couple of losses to other highly skilled teams. Our guys didn't give up. With four senior starters and seven back up seniors, the Colts bench was filled with color, character, and talent. The squad had height and size, along with agility and speed. Comp got on a roll winning thirteen of fourteen. The guys had a great and fun filled season, with players like Ben Adams ensuring a happy and good atmosphere. At the end of the season, Comp played West Springfield for the league title, but the boys came up short this time, after beating them earlier in the season.

Even though the season ended as a winning one, it all didn't matter to the Colts because they played together as a team. One person's skills only helped develop his teammates better. In the years down the road, they will all remember the good times they had together. The seventh seed was given to the Colts for the playoffs. The guys played against Amherst but Amherst came out on top, 92 -87 in overtime. The season came to an end and it was sad but it was fun and that's all that mattered.

Billy Stewart tries to get the ball from a Falcon opponent. In the background, AJ Bealieu and Tony Couture anticipate a pass.

Senior Vitaly Dzhenezherukha (23) breaks past a Chicopee High player. The two games played with Chicopee were split, each winning at their home court.

Varsity coach Dan Franczek takes a knee in prayer hoping the two foul shots will earn him two points. Foul shots are not usually a problem with the team.

Dave Forrette (33) stands up to a Chicopee High opponent showing he isn't afraid of the game they bring. Our guys went one and one with the boys from across the river.

CLUBS AND ACTIVITIES

Working hard and making a difference

For many high school students who don't play organized sports, clubs and activities are a way for students to get involved with their school. Clubs and activities provide students with helpful skills which can aid them in their future learning and careers. At right is junior Holly Haney who is working hard taking notes on what her next article will be. Holly is part of Mr. Stachura's Publications class for her first year and enjoys it. The Debate Club can help students in their future in law and peer-ed can help students in their future in teaching. Clubs and activities also help keep kids out of trouble.

Many students meet new people and build many friendships in clubs and activities. These clubs go on many field trips throughout the year and the bus rides are always full of laughter and sharing stories. Ashleigh Barrows said, "I like being in the yearbook class because it gave me an opportunity to get involved in our yearbook my senior year."

In conclusion clubs and activities are a very instrumental part of our school. Many students are involved with them. Clubs and activities gives students an opportunity to practice what they are good at and enjoy doing. After all clubs and activities are a very important part of student life.

-Cathy Tanguay, Chrissy Sheehan and Maria Michelakis

Seniors Joy Cote and Rachel Lavesque work steadily to practice preparing resumes as part of the Jobs for Baystate Grads class. These seniors should be prepared for the future.

Senior Doug Galiatsos is working hard checking out books. Being a library aide is a course offered mostly to seniors and juniors. It helps to develop good computer and organization skills.

These fourth grade students listen attentively as sophomore Samantha Bartosz and junior Emily Chagnon talk about the dangers of peer pressure and how to avoid them. The Peer Ed program has been at Comp for many years to help young kids.

Ashley Chapdelaine proudly shows off her art work. Ashley is freshman and new in the Art Club but very talented.

Trying to figure out what pictures to put in the yearbook, seniors Tracy Guyette and Shanelle Trepanier search through many photos to find the right one. Shanelle Trepanier has taken yearbook class for two years and said that it has been fun.

SADD, LIBRARY AIDES, JOBS FOR BAYSTATE GRADS

Jobs for Baystate Graduates is offered to juniors and seniors. It is offered to juniors for academic and personal success skills with intro to career planning. Seniors concentrate on goal focusing and preparing to compete for entry and professional jobs with a career path in mind. Each year students are asked to plan an event for an elementary school and they are usually a big success. Students focus on leadership, and civic involvement and career preparation. Students learn how to fill out resumes and to look at the good qualities in themselves. For two years after a senior graduates, Ms. Sroka does a follow up with their employer. She will call and see how they are doing and what and how they can improve.

SADD is students against destructive decisions. It is led by Mrs. Pavoni, who is very dedicated in having students learn about the consequences of drinking and driving. Throughout the past years people have signed a poster and the contract of life stating that "if they are to go to a party and drink, they won't drive home, they will call for help." "The program would be more effective if there was more interest from other students, but the students that are involved did a great job this year," said Mrs. Pavoni.

Library Aides are students that help out the librarians as well as other students. Each period there are two different students who go to the library. Each pair is given a section of the library that they are in charge of, whether it be books, or magazines and they keep that section in order. They also sign other students in and out of the library, as well as checking out books. Sara Conner says that it is an enjoyable course to take and she would love to take it again.

Bay State Career Association: Officers Matt Wiebel, Jessica Masse, Michelle Brown, Marlena Acevedo, Vanessa Rivera and Velma Vasques show their pride at a leadership conference. Interacting with different schools really widened their horizons.

Officers of SADD Sara Conner, Laura Barrows, Krystal Bujnicki, and Ashleigh Barrows are preparing to put up the poster.

Library aides Doug Galiotsos and Mike Carney put away reference books to help out Mrs. Rider and Mrs. Danek. Each period there are two different aides that are assigned to different sections.

Signing the poster, Diane Afonso shows her support to SADD along with many other students who had already signed it.

Stacey Larose and Erin Courchesne sit and wait while students come and sign into and out of the library.

As students learn about the different careers in modeling, they all seem interested. The students really look forward to guest speakers. This is just one of many who had graced the class with their presence.

Citizens and The Constitution

One of the classes offered here at Comp is Citizens and the Constitution which is taught by Mr. Czaporowski. Students can take this class instead of American Government. At the end of the course, students can take a test to be eligible for competition. In preparation for competition, they are split into teams and given a section to learn about. Then they are given three questions that they need to prepare the answers for together. The day before the competition, each group goes in front of a few teachers to practice for the next day.

This past year, the Citizens and the Constitution class travelled to Boston to the Supreme Court for the "We the People" competition. The students were able to feel what it was like to be in a courtroom and to be asked questions by the judges. Although they were prepared for some questions, they weren't prepared for others. One of this year's groups, consisting of Lynn Lapierre, Chelsea Harris, Tom Demers, Ryan Franczek, and Kate Rallis, won the Best Group Award.

-Sara Conner, Laura Boisseau

The Citizens and the Constitution class are in Boston. They are all excited to be there representing CCHS.

Waiting patiently for the competition to start, Ryan Franczek, Tom Demers, Lynn Lapierre, Kate Rallis, and Chelsea Harris anticipate a win.

Standing in the court room, they feel what it's like to be there. Jenna Opsitnick picks up the phone to call home.

Excited to be there. Greg Pronovost, Melinda Deprey, and Alyssa Spano hope to achieve a high score.

Juniors Tom Dumont and Brett Gazaille are reading over their notecards they prepared before starting. They prepared for three questions but were only asked one.

Bringing Us All Together

The GSA/ Diversity Club

The GSA/ Diversity Club: Front Row: Sara Rogers, Jason Surreira, Laura Amazeen, Kevin Bernier, Brianne Malloy, Back Row: Matthew Giera, Miss Morrison, and Cassandra Guild.

The Gay-Straight Alliance (or the GSA)/ Diversity Club, is a club which celebrates and encourages the diversity of sexual preference. Ms. Morrison holds meetings for this club every Thursday and runs all of the activities which they participate in. The GSA/Diversity Club's president is Taurie Fitz-Gibbon. The students within the GSA discourage the teasing and abuse against gay or bisexual people. The Diversity Club acts in many different events around the state, such as parades, certain field trips, awareness campaigns, and many other activities.

Earlier this school year, the Gay-Straight Alliance/Diversity Club became involved in the Pride March. The Pride March is a parade in which all of the schools around Massachusetts gather together to celebrate the diversity of being gay, bisexual, or straight. The club represented Chicopee along with Chicopee High. During the day of the Pride March, all members across the state spent the day together and created their own diversity flag.

Comp's GSA club marched in the Pride March last summer as they held up the Chicopee Public School's GSA Banner.

After the march, every one of the GSA groups around the Chicopee schools added their own little touch to this diversity flag.

Last summer during the Pride March, all of the GSA/Diversity Club members within Chicopee, gather together to celebrate their acceptance of equality. Coming from Chicopee Comp and all other schools within Chicopee, all members are joined as one while they march in the parade and spend the day together.

Back at the school, after the club's Pride March, Chicopee Comp members share their moments from the day that they spent together and will remember forever.

Loving To Learn After Hours

Debate

Are you a very opinionated person? Do you like these opinions to be heard? If so, you'll fit right in with this group... the Debate Team. With debates against other schools every Wednesday, preparing takes a lot of work. The members of the team, Chris Brielman, Christina Densmore, Steven Schindler, Richard Dieter, Steven Clement, Steve Trznadel, and captain Andrew Barrett study and plan out exactly what they're going to argue. The topic of the Debate Team this year is weapons of mass destruction. The Debate Team is dealing with a very controversial, but important issue because of the recent events that took place on September 11, 2001. Someday the United States may have to make a decision regarding the issue of weapons of mass destruction, in response to possible future attacks. But for now the Debate Team is doing a good job of voicing their own personal views on the subject.

When they should be preparing their debate briefs, team members Steve Trznadel, Steve Clement, and Steve Schindler play Magic the Gathering. Hopefully, they will do as well this season in debate as they do in strategy card games.

Seniors Jason Rzasa and Greg Labonte watch over their underclass teammates, Sean Sears, Matt Taslitt, and OJ Caldwell as they prepare for a big match. They later went on to defeat Chicopee High.

Stepping up to the podium, Steve Trznadel shows off his debating skills. He not only has the skills down pat, but the look too.

As Schools Match Wits

Chicopee Comprehensive's As Schools Match Wits had a challenging year. Their first match was against their arch- rivals Chicopee High. It was the first time in a long time Chicopee Comp had a match against Chicopee High. Not to worry though, Chicopee Comp beat High with the close score of 160 to 110. Although they didn't win their next match, that didn't stop them from trying their hardest. As Schools Match Wits was aired on Channel 22. The members of the As Schools Match Wits team are seniors, Jeremy Cote, Greg Labonte, juniors Matt Taslitt and Sean Sears. Jason Rzasa and OJ Caldwell are the two alternates on the team. Advisor, Mr. Czaporowski took pride in his team this season. "My students did an excellent job, I'm really proud of them... I was psyched when they won against Chicopee High seeing how it was the first match against them in 42 years."

The members of REACH patiently wait for their advisor, Mrs. Stachowicz, to arrive from Fairview where she teaches. OJ Caldwell and Matt Taslitt finish up some last minute homework while they wait.

Although the Academic Decathlon has ended, the team members still like to show their pride. Chris Boiselle, Elizabeth Dawson, Jon Garritty, Mr. Czapowski, Nick Tourville, Andrew Lamothe, and Kathryn Meade gather for one last group shot.

Reach

In middle school REACH is known as the class that gets you out of reading class; once you get to high school REACH is an after school club. The club is made up of 16 members this year where the "students work on both local and world problems," said Mrs. Stachowicz, the advisor. The club splits up into 3 competition teams; these groups come up with a solution to a current problem. The problems the club went over this year are Educational Options, Alternative Energy, Organ Donation, and Environmental Law. In March the team splits up into their groups for a competition, and for 2 hours they come up with a solution to the problem, Organ Donation. If Chicopee Comp qualifies with a good solution, they will go to MIT to compete.

One of the groups that is participating in REACH works together to come up with a solution on the subject of Organ Donors. Alli Martel, Cassandra Guild, Stanley Kopeski, and Heather Dawson put their best effort and skills into their work.

Advisor of Academic Decathlon, Mr. Czapowski takes pride in his team members. He said, "The students did very well, beyond my expectations."

Academic Decathlon

Members of the Academic Decathlon devoted themselves and their time to study for tests, preparing for speeches and interviews, as well as writing essays after school. In the end however, all the hard work, time, and effort paid off. Seniors on the team did exceptionally well. Andrew Barrett received the most medals-- a silver in math and a bronze in science, economics, and music. Kat Meade received a bronze medal in the arts, and Elizabeth Dawson received a silver medal because of her essay writing talents. A couple of other medals were also taken. Chris Brielman won three medals and Chris Boiselle received a silver medal in math. The team showed hard work and in the end did a great job representing Chicopee Comp. Being on Academic Decathlon is not easy; it takes a lot of self-discipline and dedication for these students to make themselves stay after school and do extra work and studying for a one-time competition. After the competition is over, all that work pays off in satisfaction.

Ms. Parzych- NHS Advisor

NHS

National Honor Society is going well this year; there are 31 juniors and seniors. During the beginning of this year, they made dozens of Christmas cards for hospitalized veterans. Ornaments were made for the Giving Tree in Tower Square. Money recieved from this was given to a needy family in Chicopee. The success was a total of 120 dollars donated by NHS members. After term 2 they will be participating in the A-Athon which is when people sponsor you to see how many A's you can get. The money that the students get is donated to the Make a Wish Foundation. Clearly, this year's Honor Society is hard at work continuing the long tradition of doing good work for the community. Members should feel truly proud of this important achievement.

Music For The Masses

"There is a good group of kids in band and chorus this year. They really enjoy music and work hard," stated Ms. Borowiec. The band and chorus members plan on going to a competition this year. Some chorus members will even compete in solo competitions. The members held fund-raisers, such as a candy sale, to gather the money for the competition. The students also plan on being in the St. Patrick's Day Parade. Mr. Brown mentioned just one example of the band's hard work and dedication: "I was coming into night school. It was freezing cold in November, and the marching band was hard at work out in the field. I stopped to watch for a few minutes and was amazed at their enthusiasm and effort." All in all, the band and chorus have a busy year, and we hope they do their best.

During the year the Drama Club puts on two major productions. The first production is the annual Christmas play held at City Hall during the tree lighting ceremony. This year's play was entitled "Santa's Big Trouble." It was about a toy that went crazy. The president of the Drama Club, senior Jessica Roy, said, "The Christmas play was both exciting and sad because it was my last Christmas play ever, but it was my most exciting part." In the spring there will be another production. This production is both extremely time consuming for those involved and exciting because it is the biggest production of the year.

Junior Lynn Lapierre takes a minute out of her busy rehearsing schedule to take a short nap. All of the acting that she was doing has worn her out. Surprisingly, she had the time to go change into a lovely nightie.

Jessica Roy and James Mattson get close and sassy after their Christmas play to show their love for acting. Jessica and James are president and vice president of the Drama Club.

Student Council Advisers Mr. Moritko and Mr. Czapowski posing for a snapshot at the Christmas party held at the Hotel of Northampton.

Throughout the year student council works hard to make our school a better and more spirited place. They begin in August by welcoming new freshmen with an orientation. In September they hold a homecoming election and dance, along with a rally for the sword game. November kicks off the annual year long antiviolence campaign that ends with an assembly in the spring to reward those who kept their pledge of staying away from violence. This year they had an "aloha day" to promote school spirit which is followed by the annual Spirit Week. Spirit Week consists of daily themes in which students compete for points toward their class total. They also have a can drive to benefit the Chicopee Soup Kitchen. On the last day of Spirit Week a rally is held and classes compete in games and contests. The winning class is announced at the Mr. CCHS dance that evening. Student Council also helps run and organize graduation. They help make the school year a little bit more fun.

Memories Worth Making

Yearbook

This year's yearbook "should be the best", said Mr. Brown, as class advisor and yearbook chief; he expects only the best out of the yearbook staff. "The pressure is tremendous... I want this book to be great for the class of 2002 because they are the best," said Mr. Brown. He receives great advice from Mr. Stachura the other chief, Val Perreault and Chrissy Sheehan the co-editors, and of course the yearbook staff. The staff works as a family to finish their pages by deadline. Each page you look at took days of dedication and hard work. The staff started in August knowing nothing. In January they were independently making page after page. After all their effort the final result lies in front of you.

Co-editors Val Perreault and Chrissy Sheehan take a quick break from working on the yearbook. These two help the staff make their deadlines. They take on some of the stress for Mr. Brown and Mr. Stachura.

Getting instructions from yearbook chief Mr. Stachura, Tracy Guyette, Shanelle Trepanier, and Krystal Bujnicki listen intently. The advice he is giving them will be crucial for their pages.

Finishing up on their yearbook page, Emily Bennett and Yarah Micheli look at pictures. Tami Piers is goofing off and Amelia Gualberto looks at her wondering why she's even in this class.

Having access to one of the newer Apple computers makes looking up information easier and faster. The publications class relies on these computers for their work.

Reading over their work, Keisha Fortin and Ben Abert enjoy themselves. They enjoy looking over what they have previously worked on.

Publications

The Publications class is led by Mr. Stachura. It produces our monthly newspaper, known as the Comp Chronicle. The Comp Chronicle keeps students and staff informed. It includes student opinions, thoughts, and ideas, the latest victories by the sport teams, and the most current events in and out of school. Some of the articles included the September 11th incident, anthrax, and sweat shops around the world. Lighter fare includes movie and music reviews. The newspaper follows well established journalistic conventions taught expertly by Mr. Stachura. "This year's staff of the Chronicle has done a good job in producing a quality newspaper. I have been pleased with the results," said Mr. Stachura. So bring an extra thirty five cents to school, and pick up the most recent Chronicle.

Here lies the Comp Chronicle, the school newspaper which keeps students up to date with current events. The Chronicle is on sale monthly and is produced by the Publications class.

Class Officers

Every spring class officers are voted into office before the new school year starts in September hoping to represent their class. They make their speech over the intercom telling what they think you should vote for them and what they hope to accomplish if they are elected into office. Once elected class officers work together to organize the many class activities the class participates in. They are in charge of school and class events, keeping track of the class dues, setting up proms and cotillions, and organizing class duties for spirit week such as t-shirts, can drives, and theme days. The freshmen class is the only class that doesn't have officers. Out of all the officers, the senior class officers have the most responsibilities. They put together senior week, Senior Prom, and organize Frolics. The most important things that the junior officers worry about are making sure that everyone pays their class dues and organizing the Junior Prom. Joe Czupryna, the sophomore class president, said, "It's an honor to be our class president. I can't wait to see what fun is to come in the next two years."

Key Club

Key Club International is a student led organization providing its members with opportunities to perform service, build character, and develop leadership. It is jointly composed by the local Chicopee Kiwanis Club and of the leading business and professional people of the community. Key Club is the largest service organization of its kind, with more than 217,000 members in approximately 4,700 clubs. C.C.H.S. presently has 62 members.

Juniors Kate Fitzpatrick and Cheri Rosienski agree that "Key Club has some fun times like the auction, we even make doing community service like coat drives a fun experience." The club is led by Mrs. Gately and was previously led by Mrs. White who left to go fight for our country.

Peer Mediators help resolve Comp problems

Peer Mediation is a group of students dedicated to help other students in Comp resolve their problems peacefully. To become a mediator, you have to do a three or four day training program starting in the fourth or fifth grade. Mr. Larkin, who is the leader of the mediation program, trains the students to learn how to help other students resolve conflicts and learn how to get along with one another. Senior Jeremy Brusco said, "I enjoy being a peer mediator. I like to help people resolve their problems."

When a mediator is needed, Mr. Larkin usually decides which mediator by the ability and grade level. Usually the problems that the mediator helps the students with are romantic triangles, rumors, threats, and teasing.

Junior Cheri Rosienski said, "I think mediation is pretty good, I've been a mediator since sixth grade. Honestly, I think you should handle your problems on your own, but sometimes you need the extra help and that's why we're here."

Cheri Rosienski has dealt with many problems this year, she has been a mediator since the sixth grade.

Peer Ed students help elementary school students

Peer Ed is a program designed to enlighten fifth grade students from Lambert-Lavoie, Strieber, Selser, and Barry schools about self-esteem, peer pressure, bullying and making the right choices in life, among other things.

To become a peer educator, you get interviewed by the advisor of the program, Mr. Bigda. The chosen students are usually the ones who are highly recommended for the program by their teachers.

The students go to the elementary schools during seventh period. Senior Krystal Bujnicki said, "It's a great experience to be able to work with the kids." Peer Ed is good for the fifth graders because it tells them how to deal with the pressures of everyday life. Peer education is a learning experience not only for the fifth grade students, but for the high school students as well.

Art Club: A creative outlet outside of school

Mr. Moritko lends a helping hand. Ashley LePage needs advice on where to go next with her project.

School's out and you still have some creative energy you want to let out. So where do you go? The Art Club of course. Just about every Wednesday the Art Club provides the students a chance to create projects on an individual basis. They can also use their time in the club to catch up on a project from class. "I believe that art is just as important as any other subject that is required in high school," said Mrs. Fahey, the club adviser.

Freshman Ashley Chapdelaine joined the Art Club because "I like to do art for me. It's relaxing and it brings me pleasure."

Senior Catherine Collins' favorite part of belonging to the Art Club is that she gets to work on whatever she wants. "I like how the Art Club is so laid back. We have the freedom to do whatever we want."

Discussion plays a big role in the Art Club. Mrs. Fahey and Cat Collins talk about the Hello Kitty Chair that Cat made. Her piece was entered in the Scholastic Art Awards in Boston.

Comp artists showcase their work

Many pieces reflect what is going on in the world today. At least that is what inspired junior Wendy Soffen to create this piece. "If we had better communications, the attacks of September 11 would have never happened," said Wendy about the the tragedy and her sculpture.

Senior Richard Gendreau proudly shows off his Egyptian mask. "This project was so great because I've loved Egyptian art since the sixth grade," said Gendreau. You can't even tell he dropped it.

Freshman Jessica Fernandes and senior Aggie Jarzynska stand in front of Jessica's sculpture piece. "The geometric shapes were what inspired me to create this sculpture. The bronze paint produces the 'metal like' finish," said Jessica of her inspiration. Aggie is holding her Indian piece and Jessica is holding Aggie's newly designed shoe.

SAC: Making the school better one idea at a time

The Student Advisory Council represents Chicopee Comprehensive High School at the school committee and the state. The people who meet with the school committee are Jeremy Dube, Melissa Dorval, and Rachel Pluta. The people who represent Comp at the state level are Matt Densmore and Christina Jodoin.

The students that meet with the school committee meet once or twice a month to give ideas from the students' point of view. They meet with the state only a few times a year as needed. Although this year's Student Advisory Council was nominated by their teachers, usually you have to be elected to be on this council.

"Some of the things we have discussed so far are the MCAS, a new smoking policy, and we have begun to work on the hat policy a little bit," said senior Melissa Dorval. None of their ideas have been put into effect. Yet!

The student representatives to the school committee meet at the Helen O'Connell Administration Office. They meet here to bring forth their ideas to school committee members. They hope their ideas will get approved and will be put into action.

Special Thanks

The class of 2002 would like to thank those individuals who played important roles in helping us with our senior year. Mr. Clark and Ms. Wilk gave freely of their time, experience, and knowledge; they were our unofficial third and fourth co-advisors! Without them, our senior year would not have gone so smoothly. All of the administrators, Mr. Kozikowski, Ms. Fennessy, Ms. Beggetta, Mr. Peterson, Mr. Widelo, and Mr. John Kozikowski assisted with class activities, helped organize events, attended senior functions, and made sure that our advisors, Mr. Brown and Ms. Potorski had adequate common planning time. Their efforts went beyond what was required of them, and we are truly grateful. The secretaries in the office helped with numerous phone calls and complicated financial matters; their contribution is not to be underestimated.

Administrators helped the class of 2002 in many ways. Thank you Mr. Kozikowski, Mrs. Fennessy, Mrs. Beggetta, Mr. Peterson (not pictured) Mr. Widelo, and Mr. John Kozikowski.

Memories of yesterday are shared by the class of 2002

by Brandon Puzzo

The senior class of 2002 prepares to put on their caps and gowns, walk down the aisle, and receive diplomas. As they do this, they reflect on the past four years of high school. Some do this with fondness, others perhaps not so much fondness is involved. However, for the most part, the class of 2002 has many fond memories and some are shared here.

Heather McGrath remembers her four years of counting cans and decorating shirts for spirit week.

Jen Kuc looks back on Mrs. Osetek's trig class junior year when, discussing trigonometry, one of the students yelled, "To infinite and beyond!"

Erin Dubois remembers when Amy mixed the wrong chemicals in chemistry class junior year resulting in a large cloud of unidentified gas.

Krista Langlois commented on Mrs. Chelte saying "I'm gonna touch you!" Also her ability to speak in English accents on demand.

Christina Jodoin and Audrey McLain remember when Quynh spilled the juice in Trig class.

Samantha Wong looks back on when Brianne sniffed glitter in junior year.

Jason Rzasa laughs when he recalls when Croteau made a fake office slip for Densmore.

Megan Grenier looks back on junior and senior year's crazy powder puff practices.

Christin Dubin remembers the laugh everyone had when she sat down in her sophomore English class and everyone noticed the big hole in her pants.

Krystal Bujnicki recalls Aaron and Ben at the girls' basketball game cheering away.

These are just a sample of the many fond memories the class of 2002 shares. Hopefully, reunions will be full of many stories that occurred right here at Comp.

Senior gripes include girls, lunches, curriculum, tests

by Kelsha Fortin and Holly Haney

The seniors are gone. We've asked them what they're doing after high school, what they've loved and learned, but what we really want to know is what tickled their pickle, ruffled their feathers, got them red in the face, made them ANGRY?

It seems the girls in our school don't like... the girls in our school. Maria Michelakis includes the girls in Comp in her gripe list, and Rachel Levesque said, "All the girls are just drama queens."

Katie O'Keefe's biggest gripe is school lunch. It "kills" her. Heather Boyington wasn't happy about the fact that school lunch wasn't always what was on the lunch calendar, especially when chicken nuggets were omitted.

Jenna Bournique's biggest annoyance is Mr. Peterson, and Rachel Pluta just hates "tests in general."

Stacy Larose gripes about there being no air conditioning, and Joe Camrye hates the soccer team because "it sucks."

When asked about his senior gripes, Brian Dallas said, "I learned the same thing this year that I learned last year." Brian Cooper also expressed discontent towards the redundant curriculum, but his biggest problem this year were "snotty girls" or "divas."

So, that's that. No A.C., bad lunches, and other random stuff have plagued the seniors this year, though most of them seem to be leaving with their happy faces on, and who can blame them? But, there's a vein of bitterness waiting to be tapped. We're hoping the juniors will survive next year, or at least make the best of it.

Seniors will be missed on the athletic fields

Jordan Pare demonstrates his basketball abilities to Tony Couture and Ben Adams.

Boys Soccer

The boys' soccer team are losing seniors Doug Galiatsos, Kris Wanat, Bryan Russell, and Mike Jarmuzewski. "It's too bad we couldn't win a game for the seniors," said junior Zach Siano.

Girls Soccer

The girls' soccer team had a successful season making it to the tournament. Next season's team will miss Rachael Pluta and Cathy Tanguay who were named 2nd team All-Western Mass. The team will also be losing Ashley Barrows and Krystal Bujnicki who played strong role for the team.

Football

This year's football team had the potential to go far but fell just short of making the playoffs. The team will be losing All-Western Mass picks Tony Couture, Vitaly Dzhenezherukha, and Darrel Brown. They will also be losing Ben Adams, Jay Nally, Jeremy Bruso, Matt Taft, Matt Poirer, Rich Starke, and Aaron Lafond.

Junior A.J. Neiford said, "We lost a lot of talent this year, it is going to take a lot to replace the seniors we lost."

Gymnastics

The gymnastics team will be losing Jess Downie, Heather McGrath, and Devan Daviau.

Girls Cross Country

The girls' cross country team will be losing Kat Meade, and Heather Wenninger.

"It's going to be tough next year without my partner Brian and the rest of these guys," said junior Andrew Provost.

Girls Tennis

Seniors on the girls' tennis team were Heather McGrath, Rachel Fry and Jessica Roy.

"Hopefully we will be able to get through next year without these girls," said junior Sara Strzempek.

Girls Track

"I am really going to miss all of these girls, they were a big part of this team," said junior Jess Hoffman.

Boys Track

Seniors on the boys' track team were Nick Tourville, Doug Galiatsos and Andrew Lamothe.

Jessica Roy, Rachel Fry and Heather McGrath gave the girls' tennis team a solid senior foundation.

"Nick, Doug and Andrew were really good leaders and they helped out all of this a lot," said sophomore Jake Vieu.

Softball

Volleyball

The seniors on the boys' volleyball team were Greg Gagnon and Bryan Russell.

"As a first year team we really kicked some butt, it was a good ol' time," said senior captain Greg Gagnon.

Lea Daigneault lends a helping hand to Heather Wenninger during the indoor track season.

What I really learned in school

By Ben Abert

I'd like to be able to start this with a nostalgic "It seems like only yesterday" sort of introduction, but it unfortunately doesn't seem that way to me. My four years at Chicopee Comp were very long and memorable to say the least, and now that they are finally over I have to sit and ask myself; what have I learned in high school?

The lessons we are taught in high school are to be remembered and followed constantly, in order to lead a successful life out there in the real world. So in completing high school, I can now enter the real world, armed with the following priceless knowledge.

- 1) Two boys sharing a bathroom stall is not weird if they are smoking cigarettes.
- 2) Half of the faculty members are paid to do seemingly nothing.
- 3) Resource officers attract all the chicks.
- 4) The legal drinking age has apparently been reduced to 12.

5) Possession of tobacco = warning. Possession of electronic device = suspension. Yup.

6) E-mail is bad. (What ever happened to the Renaissance Festival?)

7) Majority Rules rules.

8) It's possible to fail applied math?

9) If you illegally park in the same spot for long enough, the school will eventually make it a legal spot for you.

10) The real world is a sick and evil place that I will fail miserably in, according to some.

11) If it isn't "sick" or "phat," it's "wicked gay."

12) It's not all that important to bring your books to class, but forget your ID and you're screwed.

So there you have it. My high school education summed up in 12 short lessons. With all the wonderful knowledge I've managed to obtain through this place, I'm sure to succeed in life. Maybe some day I'll become Superintendent of Schools.
